SOVIETS FIRE VENUS SHOT

Turnpike Ballroom Burns

Flames Destroy Big Hall

Landmark Burns In Early Morning

By Roger Wait
A towering Sunday morning fire reduced the Turnpike Ballroom to ashes and 4 persons in the building at the time escaped.

Flames leapt 250 feet in the air at the height of the fire which apparently started about 3 a.m. in the southeast corner of the building 7 miles south of Lincoln on U.S. Hwy. 77.

Not much remains of the well-known ballroom now.

All that stands is the cracked cement-block foundation, a forlorn chimney, ash-whitened furnaces and scorched trees, posts and utility poles.

Rubble and ashes litter the ground inside the foundation. Not a stick of wood remains.

Built Of Wood

The Turnpike was built mainly of wood, reinforced with steel I-beams. These and the plumbing were twisted into all kinds of shapes by the heat of the fire.

It could be seen in a radius of several miles, including southern Lincoln.

Sunday afternoon, the triangular site was crowded by thousands of sightseers and their cars.

Traffic on the highway between 14th and Pioneers and the Crete corner was heavy as Sunday spectators came from miles around.

Traffic around the Turnpike was so heavy that cars were backed up nearly a half mile at times.

The sightseers' main questions were: "How did it start?" and "Do they plan to build a new one?"

Throughout the mild gray afternoon, the rubble gave off heat and the coal pile was still glowing and burning.

Doused Again

Sunday evening, Lincoln firemen returned to the ballroom shell and doused the smoldering rubbish.

Just about 2½ hours before the blaze broke out early Sunday, the last of 400 persons who danced to the O. K. Jones band's music late Saturday and after midnight left the ballroom.

Manager John Long said he left at 1:45 a.m. That left only the caretaker, his family, and employee Bill Phillips.

Around 3 a.m., caretaker Al Spaedt was checking the building. As he neared the south part of the main floor, he spied the fire.

Near Bar

It had started, Spaedt said, somewhere around the bar in the southeast part of the ballroom itself.

The heat was so intense and the fire "spread so rapidly," he said, "we didn't think we were going to get anything out."

Spaedt said a friend, Gary Nannen of nearby Sprague-Martell, saw the fire and turned in the alarm from the nearby Tate service station.

Three fire trucks were dispatched to the Turnpike fire.

One pumper came from the Lincoln department, one from Crete and the other from the Lincoln Air Force Base.

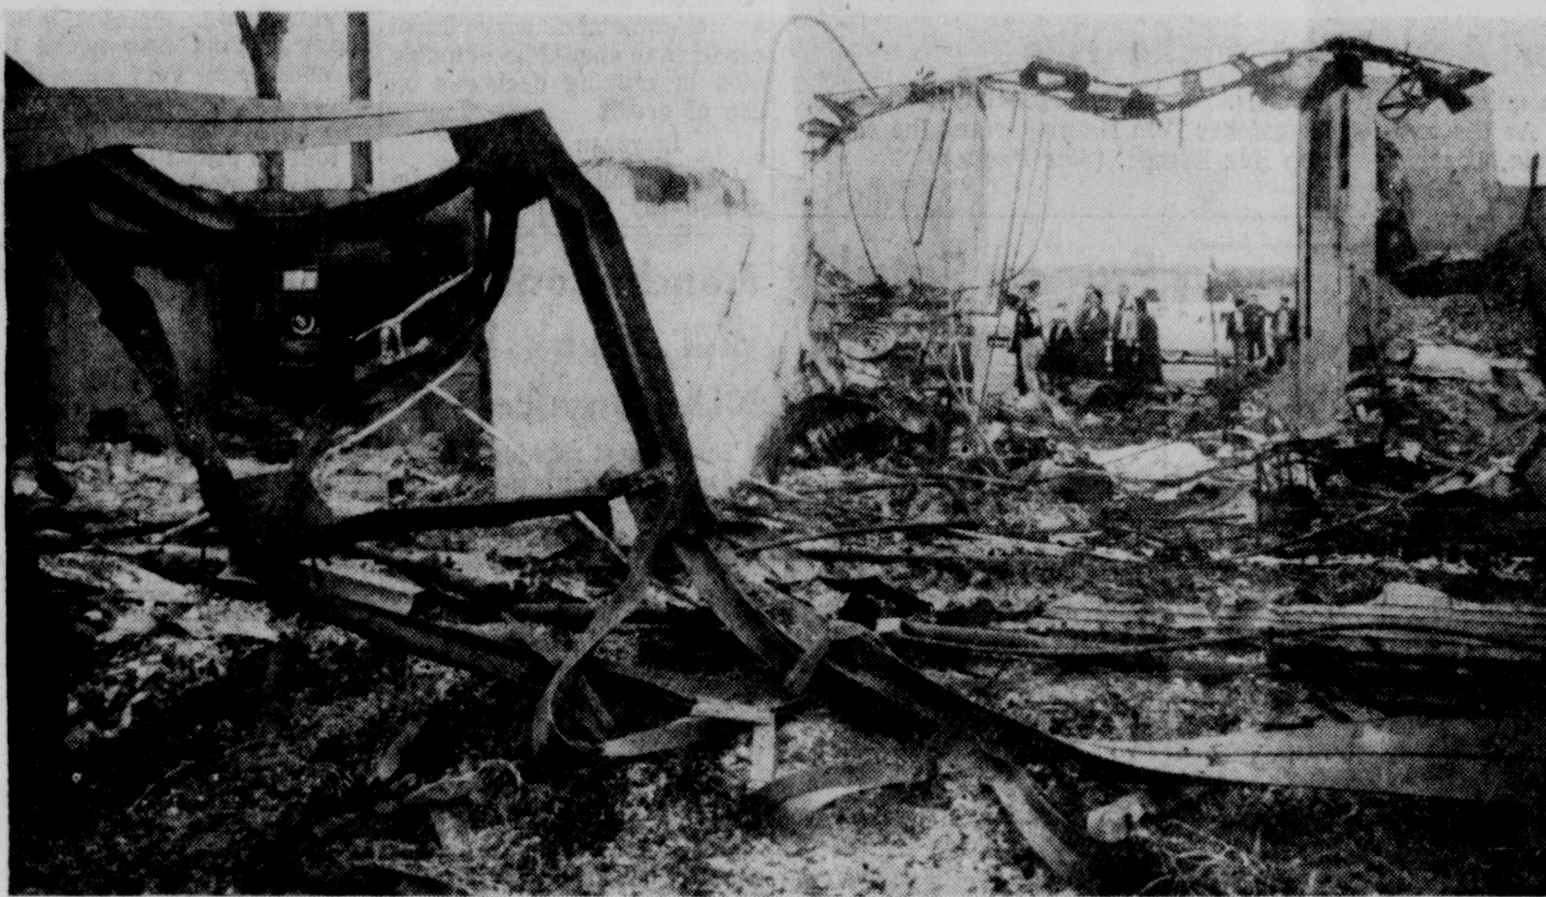

Firemen concentrated their efforts on putting out minor fires that sprang from wind-blown sparks.

Fortunately the wind was from the southeast. Fire therefore endangered neither a service station southwest of the ballroom nor petroleum storage tanks north and south of the Turnpike.

It took the fire about ¾ of an hour to reach the Spaedt apartment in the building's northeast corner.

That gave the Spaedts, Phillips, several neighbors and passers-by time to re-

Lincoln Police Bag 12 Persons In Vice Raid

By Gary Rodgers

Lincoln police, utilizing undercover men, walkie-talkies, and radio cars, coordinated a mass round-up in a vice raid on So. 3rd early Sunday morning, according to Police Chief Joseph Carroll.

Twelve individuals were booked at 12:45 a.m. Sunday. Investigation later that day led to additional arrests, including that of a taxi driver and a bell-hop.

Swelling the number of arrests in connection with morals investigations were:

—The arrest of a 28-year-old man in connection with the investigation of a morals case involving a 17-year-old girl.

—The arrest of a 21-year-old man, booked and released subject to call on a morals case in the process of investigation.

—The arrest of an 18-year-old boy and a 16-year-old boy jailed on open charges in connection with the investigation of a morals case involving two 13-year-old girls. The boys were arrested on the complaint of one of the girls' fathers. The boys admitted showing obscene pictures to the girls, molesting them and giving them whiskey.

The Sunday morning arrest of a man in a local hotel for investigation of immoral activities.

A married couple who hold a license for the sale of beer downtown were arrested for selling beer in their home on Sunday. A taxi driver was also arrested in connection with this case.

The influx of arrests brought to 55 the total number held in the city jail Sunday.

Woman Dies In Accident

Lincoln Star Special

Omaha—A car accident occurring 12 miles west of here on U.S. 30 A resulted in death for a 33-year-old Fremont woman, the State Safety Patrol reported Sunday night.

The victim was Twila Storch.

According to the patrol report, the mishap occurred when a car driven by Eugene Storch, 33, collided with another car driven by Gary L. Stange, 22, of Yutan.

The Storch auto was en route west and the Stange auto east, the patrol said.

Dead Letter Pile Nets $571,772

Washington (AP)—Letters and parcels so improperly addressed or wrapped that they ended up in the dead mail pile brought the government $571,772 during the fiscal year that ended last June 30.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day reported this Sunday and said the pile was bigger during the last fiscal year than during the previous 12 months.

U.S. WILL TRY TO ORBIT 'BALLOON' SATELLITE

By Vern Haugland

Washington (AP)—The United States will attempt to place in orbit around the earth this week a balloon-type satellite twice as tall as a man.

If successful, the firing from Wallops Island, Va., will be unusual in two aspects:

1. It will be the first U.S. satellite to spring into orbit from a site other than Cape Canaveral, Fla., or Southern California's Pacific missile range.

2. It will be the first launching of a satellite into orbit by means of a rocket fueled solely with solid propellants.

Heretofore, solid propellants have been used in upper stages, but liquid propellants have been necessary to lift the heavy first stage.

The launching vehicle will be a Scout rocket 72 feet tall, a 4-stage device.

The 15-pound satellite, 12 feet in diameter, will be hurled toward an elliptical orbit expected to range between altitudes of 400 and 1,400 miles.

Its primary purpose will be to measure the density of the earth's atmosphere at different altitudes.

Its life expectancy probably will be from a few weeks to as much as a year. However, the relatively heavy spent motor of the rocket's fourth stage—which also will contain a tracking beacon—may remain in orbit much longer.

"The real purpose of this experiment will be to test the capability of the 4-stage, all-solid propellant Scout launching vehicle," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

"When Scout has successfully run through the developmental tests and is ready for operational use, it is destined to play a major role in future international space efforts."

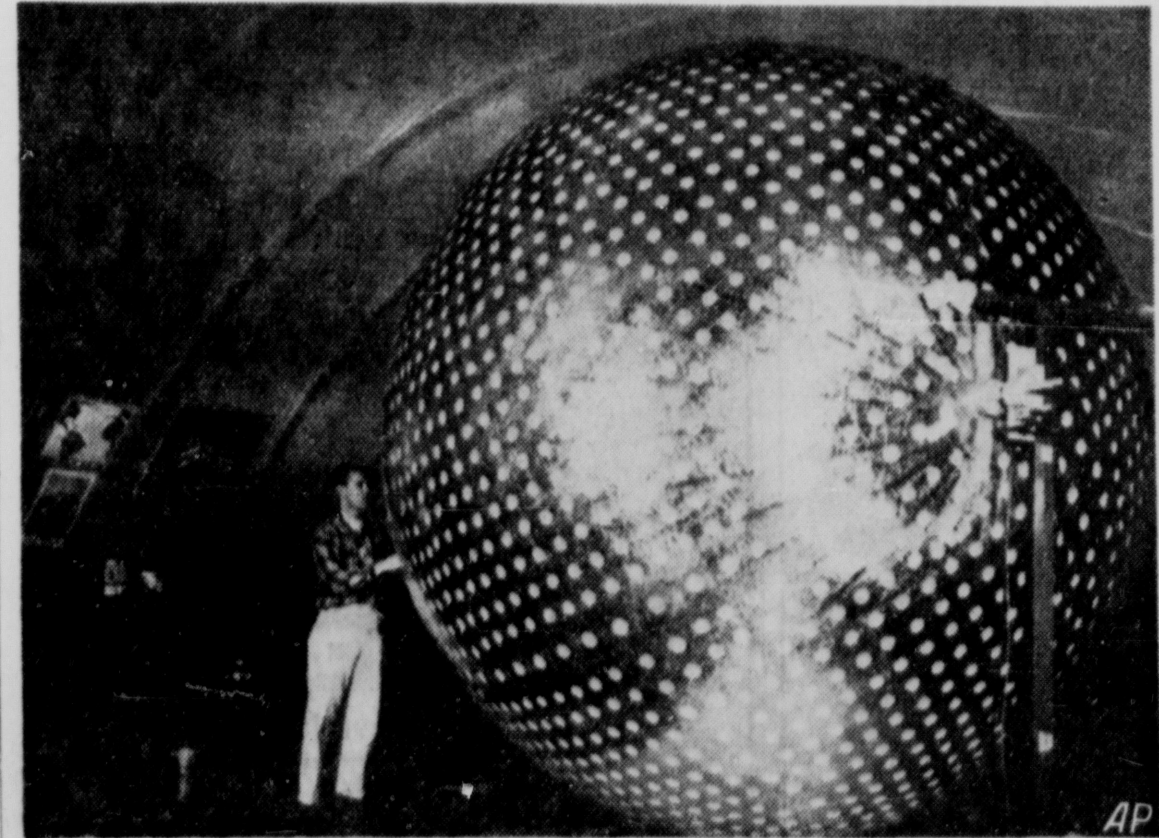

"Some time early in 1962, this versatile vehicle will be charged with the important role of carrying into earth orbit a scientific satellite designed and instrumented by scientists in Great Britain.

"Scout is earmarked to become one of the 4 basic vehicles in NASA's goal to build up a fleet of standardized units for specific missions. Scout will then stand beside the Atlas Agena-B, Centaur and powerful Saturn."

Like the solid-propellant Minuteman and Polaris ballistic missiles, the Scout rocket has the advantage over liquid propellant vehicles of simplicity and, therefore, improved reliability.

In its present form, it will be able to place 150-pound satellites into orbits 300 miles above the earth, and to launch scientific probes vertically as high as 8,000 miles.

Technicians put the finishing touches to the 12-foot balloon which the NASA hopes to put in orbit with a Scout rocket within the next week.

Russian Plans Call For Springtime Rendezvous

'AUTOMATIC INTERPLANETARY STATION' FIRED FROM SPUTNIK LAUNCH PAD

By Reinhold G. Ens

Moscow (AP)—With a new sputnik as a launching pad, a 1,418 pound "automatic interplanetary station" was fired off Sunday on a flight toward a springtime rendezvous with the planet Venus, the Russians announced.

The new probe into the mysterious depths of outer space carried out successfully in an extraordinarily complicated manner, the announcement indicated.

It said a multistage rocket carried a new sputnik into orbit, a rocket was launched from the sputnik, and the rocket fired off the space station with the intention either of hitting Venus or going into orbit around it.

Red Banner

On the station is a Soviet banner with the Soviet coat of arms.

At noon, in Moscow, it was announced the new space probe already was more than 80,000 miles on its flight to Venus, whose distance from the earth varies from 26 million to 160 million miles.

Tass news agency said the interplanetary station was not expected to reach the planet—named for the Roman goddess of love—until mid-May.

Normal

The announcement said equipment aboard including radio transmission apparatus, was functioning normally and was being tracked by a special center.

"In conformity with the Soviet space research program, a heavy artificial satellite of the earth was orbited in the Soviet Union on Feb. 12, 1961, by an improved multi-stage rocket," said the announcement.

"On the same day, a guided space rocket, launched from the sputnik, set an automatic interplanetary station on a flight to the planet Venus."

The Second

This space probe was the second announced by the Soviet Union in 8 days.

On Feb. 4, the Russians announced the launching of a giant 7-ton sputnik whose radio silence has mystified Western scientists. The scientists were unable to get radio signals from it, but have been able to observe it briefly.

U.S. AND BRITISH SHOT REACTION

The Russians, who hailed the launching of the 7-ton sputnik as a significant step toward manned space flight, have been strangely silent about its performance, leading to Western speculation that something went wrong.

First Path

The launching Sunday, was hailed as "blazing the first path to planets of the solar system."

Venus circles the sun at an average distance of about 67 million miles.

It is sometimes called the Morning Star, sometimes the Evening Star, and like the earth is enveloped in cloud-laden atmosphere.

Astronomers never have been able to determine how long it takes to revolve on its axis.

Check Methods

The Russians said the main object of the probe is to check methods of putting a space body into interplanetary trajectory.

It also is designed to check radio communications over superlong distances and the guiding of a space station, to check more exactly the size of the solar system and to carry out a program of physical observations in outer space, it was announced.

The station is broadcasting on an ultra high frequency of 922.8 megacycles per second in order to penetrate the earth's ionosphere.

30 Million

The Russians are aiming at Venus when it will be about 30 million miles from the earth. Venus comes nearer the earth than any other planet. Communication from that area would set a new record in space communication. At present the mark is held by the United States. Pioneer V, launched last March from Cape Canaveral in a sun-circling orbit, lost contact at 22.5 million miles when its batteries failed.

The space station apparently can be guided from the earth by radio signals, as the announcement said it had "received commands from the earth."

May Be Live

Soviet professor, Nikolai Barabashov, said recently there may be life on Venus, a planet which undergoes periods of brightness and darkness like the moon. He said Venus was perpetually surrounded by mist which appeared to be in the carboniferous period through which the earth passed millions of years ago. He suggested life might be at the beginning there.

Other Soviet scientists have disputed theories of human life on Venus, however, contending the temperature is much too high.

Tass said the Venus rocket at noon, Moscow time, was in line with a point on the earth at 36 degrees, 40 minutes east and 6 degrees, 4 minutes north. This would be in the Indian Ocean between Ceylon and Sumatra.

The first 3 Soviet sputniks orbited near the earth and learned some conditions of space near the earth and effects of the sun on the earth.

But then Russia suddenly reached for the moon. She hit it. She photographed the back side. She sent one satellite past the moon into an orbit around the sun.

Then abruptly she dropped the moon as a target.

In 1960 she launched 3 space crafts circling the earth, at least two carrying "zoos" of dogs and other animals and plant life. One capsule was recovered, but the last one misfired and the passengers died.

All this seemed to presage an early attempt to put a man into space.

Instead, in a fourth pattern, Russia has shot for the planets, beginning with the mysterious veiled Venus.

But launching Ivan himself into space seems still to be in the cards, perhaps for play quite soon.

—LUMUMBA STILL MISSING—

Tshombe Won't See Investigator

Leopoldville, The Congo (P)—U.N. headquarters said Katanga's President Moïse Tshombe refused Sunday to see an Ethiopian general assigned to investigate the disappearance of ex-premier Patrice Lumumba.

The investigator is Brig. Gen. Mengasha Hyassu, chief of staff of the U.N. Congo command. He flew to Elisabethville, Katanga's capital, on the special request of U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Hyassu's job is to try to find out exactly what happened to Lumumba and his fellow prisoners, Maurice Mpolo and Joseph Okito.

Overpowered

The Katanga government says the 3 overpowered guards holding them in a farmhouse at Mutshatsa, 220 miles west of Elisabethville, Thursday night and fled in a black car subsequently found wrecked 45 miles to the north. It has denied rumors that the story of the escape was issued to cover an assassination plot.

"To my knowledge it was a genuine escape," Tshombe told newsmen in Elisabethville.

(The Durban South Africa, Sunday Tribune said proof is lacking, but the most favored story in Elisabethville is that Lumumba was slain the night of Jan. 17 when he arrived at that Katanga capital as a battered prisoner.)

Internal Affair

The Lumumba case is a purely internal affair that has nothing whatever to do with the United Nations, he declared, and he is awaiting a full report from his own inquiry commission.

Dead or alive, the fiery, left-leaning ex-premier remains the most penetrating force in Congolese politics, rapidly degenerating toward factional tests at arms.

The United Nations disclosed that troops from 3 of the Congo's armies are on the move, perhaps to a deadly rendezvous.

A force of 1,200 central government soldiers under Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu was reported arriving by plane and boat at Bumba, a Congo river town on the frontier of Lumumbist Oriental Province.

Head West

Meanwhile, truckloads of rebel troops headed westward from Stanleyville, Oriental's capital, toward Bumba. U.N. reports confirmed that there was a regular flow of troops to Basoko, a half-way point on the road to Bumba.

A U.N. spokesman said there are no U.N. troops in the vicinity. He reminded newsmen that the Security Council mandate will not permit the United Nations to interpose itself between rival factions if war actually breaks out.

The third force on the move is Katanga's. A detachment of 1,200 men under tough European officers relieved the embattled Katanga garrison of Luena, a coal mining center, and drove out entrenched Baluba warriors.

In announcing this offensive, Tshombe said there were heavy casualties among the Balubas and many were captured. He said one Katanga soldier was killed and one wounded.

New House Unit To Have Nuclear Fallout Shelters

Thousand Oaks, Calif. (P)—An hour's drive north of Hollywood a new housing development provides nuclear fallout shelters with every house.

Builder Lou Towne says he believes it's the first time this has been done in an entire development.

Homes are in two units, one in the $17,000-$18,000 class, the other in the $30,000 class. The $1,300 cost of the shelter is included in the price and isn't optional.

"In countries like Sweden," Towne said, "you can't build a home without a shelter. What with world conditions the way they are, we felt somebody should start doing something in this country."

"So, from now on, every home we build is going to have a shelter in it."

Trinity Methodist Welcomes Pastor

The Rev. and Mrs. Paul D. Sisler were welcomed to Trinity Methodist Church at a Sunday reception at the church.

The Rev. Mr. Sisler became associate pastor at the Lincoln church Feb. 5. He is the former pastor of Shoreline Evangelical United Brethren Church in Seattle.

Trinity Methodist pastor, the Rev. Darrell E. Berg, became acquainted with the Rev. Mr. Sisler while he was serving in a Seattle pastorate prior to coming to Lincoln last summer.

Crash Causes Minor Injuries

Bernita C. Bachmann, 26, of 1630 H, was treated by a local physician for injuries received when the car in which she was a passenger struck a parked car on A St., between 28th and Park Dr.

John C. Fleming, 25, of 1018 So. 16th, the driver of the car, said he met an oncoming car and pulled right to give it room and as he did so struck the parked car knocking it forward into another car.

Damage to the Fleming car was estimated at $1,000, police said.

The terms "New Frontier" and "Supply Management" are already becoming familiar to farmers discussing the Kennedy administration farm program suggestions.

The proposal to pay one-half of the grain storage payments in advance drew favorable response from farmers who reminded their friends in town that this money will come just right for baby chicks, seed, fertilizer, fuel, repairs and the hundred and one other things a farmer needs when spring approaches.

Many farmers voiced displeasure with members of the Nebraska legislature who failed to support a resolution asking Congress to speed a farm plan to raise farm income and bring to a halt the fast buildup of surplus grain.

"It seems that some of our Senators fail to realize that Nebraska depends upon agriculture and if the farmer is suffering the entire state can well share the same plight," was a general farmer comment.

A resolution aimed at supporting farm legislation that has been presented to Congress lacked 5 votes of obtaining speedy acceptance.

Dale E. Nelson, chairman of the Lancaster County ASC Committee, this week urged farmers and ranchers to:

—Make requests promptly for needed ACP cost-sharing for conservation practices they plan to perform.

—Refrain from requesting cost-sharing for practices which they do not definitely plan to carry out soon.

—Cooperation of producers on these two points is essential to the ASC committee's plan of operation for fully utilizing available cost-sharing funds most effectively," Nelson explained.

Nelson cautions farmers that a request for cost-sharing must be filed before work begins on a practice.

Fumes Fatal To 5 In Auto

Tampa, Fla. (P)—Four teenagers and a 2-month-old baby were found dead in a car parked just east of Tampa Sunday. Sheriff's deputies said they died from carbon monoxide fumes.

Leon Blanton, 21, noticed the car mired down in sand in an orange grove about 150 yards off a road. He and 3 friends investigated and called police.

The victims, all from Tampa, were Charles Seals, 16, his wife, Diana, 17, their son, Charles Jr., Aubrey Kelley, 17, and Ethel Ferguson, 19.

Deputy Bob Boberg theorized that the victims drove into the grove and their car got stuck in the sand. They left the motor running to keep warm and closed all but one window. It was opened about 3 inches when the bodies were discovered.

Boberg said the car's muffler was broken and that fumes apparently got into the car through breaks in the floorboard.

Economist Warns Farmers: Be Cautious In Use Of Credit

Whether or not individual farmers should use additional credit in 1961 depends on individual circumstances, according to Philip A. Henderson, Extension farm economist at the University of Nebraska.

"Because of the price-cost squeeze, volume of business will be at a premium if it is well managed. Able managers still may find it to their advantage to borrow money to maintain or expand their businesses," Henderson points out.

"Borrowers need to operate cautiously, however. A good sharp pencil, good sound judgment and the counsel of a well-informed agricultural credit man should be valuable aids in making decisions on use of credit.

Increase Return

"Borrowing which will increase the net returns from crops as a result of using fertilizer or spray materials at nearer optimum level deserves consideration by the individual farmer. Purchases of labor saving equipment need to be considered very carefully. Not only do such purchases require a considerable amount of money in most instances, but the benefits can only be realized over a period of years, as contrasted to returns from money invested in fertilizer. If the purchase of labor-saving equipment will permit increasing the volume of business that can be handled, or cutting down on labor expense, it may still be worth considering," Henderson emphasizes.

"Borrowing for the purchase of land also needs to be considered very carefully. Generally speaking, anyone who buys an extra farm unit at today's prices is apt to find the going pretty rough when it comes to paying for it, especially if he borrows a very large portion of the purchase price. Land values in Nebraska are now near record levels.

Watch Bid Basis

"Much of the increase in land values which occurred during recent years is the result of bidding for land by farmers who have been seeking to enlarge their farm units. To a certain extent this has been justified. In too many instances, however, it appears that bids have been made on a basis which allows little, if anything, by way of returns to labor and management or for the use of machinery. All of the returns above variable costs seem to have been capitalized into the price offered for land. This is not good business."

Henderson suggests following these principles of credit use:

—Shop for credit. This does not mean finding the source of credit which will let you have the most credit with the fewest questions. Rather, it means finding a source of credit where the "lender" knows and understands your kind of farming; where interest rates are low; and where terms of repayment are in line with your operation.

—Get credit from institutions which make a business of extending credit to farmers. It is usually better to confine your borrowing to one such dependable institution.

—Plan your credit needs with your banker well in advance. Keep him informed with respect to your financial position. Work out plans for the use of money borrowed and plans for repayment.

—Live up to your end of the bargain. Use the money for the purpose indicated to the lender. Meet principal and interest payments when due or make necessary arrangements.

—The greater the cost-price squeeze and-or the more shaky one's financial position, the greater the importance of limiting borrowing to purposes which will either increase earnings or enable farmers to save on operating expenses.

Fidel May Export His Revolution ... SHIFTS STAND

Havana (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro appeared Sunday to have abandoned his official position that the Cuban revolution is not for export.

In a 2½-hour televised speech he declared the United States was encouraging counterrevolution in Cuba and that this gave him the right to assist revolution throughout Latin America.

Assailing what he called "frauds who convert religion into an antisocial, antinational institution," he also gave a strong hint of imminent action against the Roman Catholic Church, which he previously had accused of being a center of conspiratorial activities.

Castro, who was up at a late hour delivering the speech to government workers, led a volunteer sugar-cane cutting corps in its Sunday chores at Hershey plantation east of Havana.

Referring to the Washington program for aid to thousands of Cuban refugees in the United States, Castro asked: "Do they feel they have the right to approve a credit for counterrevolutionary exiles?"

"Then Cuba feels it has the right to approve a credit to aid exiled Puerto Ricans and revolutionary exiles in all Latin America."

He declared Cuba would even go to the United Nations "to declare that, if the United States believes in the right to promote counterrevolution in Cuba and counterrevolution and reaction in Latin America, Cuba feels it has the right to spur revolution in Latin America."

Revolutionary committees from various Latin-American countries, particularly the Dominican Republic and Nicaragua and from Puerto Rico, a United States commonwealth where a vociferous nationalist movement has existed for years, have been in Cuba for some time.

Until now Castro's government has insisted it was not materially aiding these exiles, only giving them shelter.

Despite Castro's claim revolutionary expeditions were launched against Panama and Nicaragua in 1959. But whether these were mounted with government assistance is not clear. Guatemala also charged Cuba with aiding an unsuccessful revolt in that country last year.

Castro made a point of advising that his government is putting up a big new radio station to broadcast revolutionary "truths to the 4 corners of the world."

He said he felt Cuba had the same right as the United States to broadcast its viewpoint. He alluded to broadcasts of the Voice of America and a privately operated station off Honduras called "Radio Swan" which Castro claims is financed by the United States.

FLAMES REDUCE TURNPIKE BALLROOM TO ASHES

south of Lincoln since 1936 and well known as the place where a number of name dance bands have appeared over the years. Picture at right above shows the scene Sunday after the fire, with nothing left but ashes and twisted girders.

Rural Fire District Might Prevent Heavy Loss

By Roger Wait

Fire Chief Roscoe Benton said late Sunday that the Turnpike Ballroom, destroyed by fire early Sunday, might have been partially saved if a rural fire district existed around Lincoln.

The Turnpike was the 11th structure — and by far the most expensive — to be destroyed by 4 fires in one month on Lincoln's outskirts.

TURNPIKE BURNS

move most of the family's furniture and belongings.

Among the neighbors who worked fast and furiously were Jim Sievers, Nannen, Harvey Damrow and Wayne Honnor.

Honor said they "were fortunate in getting most of the Spaedt's personal property out. "There was some fast moving there for awhile," he commented.

Late Sunday, Spaedt expressed his gratitude.

"All I can say is, "thanks," he said, "and I really mean it."

He, his wife Clea, and their 15-year-old daughter, Connie who attends Southeast High School, are staying with relatives in Lincoln temporarily. Cause Not Known

Cause of the disastrous fire was not known.

"I can't figure out what started it," Long said.

The ballroom was well-known throughout southeast Nebraska, northern Kansas and southwestern Iowa.

It drew many nationally known entertainers and dance bands during its 25 years of existence.

"Names" which have played the Turnpike include: Glenn Miller, Harry James, Ted Lewis, Guy Lombardo, Lawrence Welk, Sammy Kaye, Vaughn Monroe, Griff Williams, Bob Hope, "Tiny" Hill, Phil Harris, Wayne King, Red Norvo, Blue Barron, Jan Garber, Jan Savitt, Ben Bernie, Conway Twitty and Tom Gentry, who opened it in 1936.

Second On Site
The 100 by 104 ft. Turnpike which burned Sunday was the second ballroom on the site.

Fire in the autumn of 1935 leveled the old building. The one destroyed Sunday was built in 1936 at a cost of between $50,000 and $60,000.

To build a similar new ballroom would cost approximately $200,000, according to Reon H. Pauley of Pauley Lumber Co., the Turnpike's owner.

Pauley declined to estimate total loss. It was not entirely covered by insurance, he noted, because there was no fire hydrant within miles of the location.

In each case, insufficient water sources severely hampered firemen's efforts.

On Jan. 12, firemen stood by helplessly as flames engulfed the $16,000 home of a widow and her two children at 7601 Pioneers Blvd.

Mrs. Emma Manske, her 15-year-old son George Jr., and daughter, Georgia, 12, narrowly escaped death, in that blaze. The nearest hydrant was 20 blocks away at 56th and Pioneers.

Nine days later, a wind-whipped blaze in zero temperatures leveled a barn, two granaries and a shed on the Dean K. Looft farm ½ mile north of 70th and U.S. 6. Loss was heavy.

In that Jan. 21 fire, hundreds of bales of hay, straw and other cattle feed went up in smoke. Firemen had to go several times to the nearest hydrant 1-3rd of a mile away to refill their pumps.

And on Jan. 26, flames completely destroyed Mr. and Mrs. Frank Finnerty's 7-room frame farm home 1½ miles east of 70th and Van Dorn.

The fire also consumed their pumphouse, workshop, garage, washhouse and a ¾-ton truck.

Firefighters' efforts there were frustrated when their pumper truck could not pass over a small bridge leading up to the Finnerty's house. Their loss was $10,000.

In the wake of those heavy rural fire losses, Chief Benton said city officials were considering elimination of fire limits.

Now, the Lincoln Department provides free fire protection to surrounding rural areas; those areas pay no taxes for that protection.

Late Sunday, Chief Benton said: "Possibly, if we had had tanker trucks, we could have done something out there."

Present manpower and equipment are utterly inadequate to fight major rural fires, he said.

The departments has two 300-gallon capacity pumps; most of its other equipment carries 125 gallons of water apiece.

Would Have Tankers

But, the fire chief added, if there were a rural fire district around Lincoln, there would be 4 large tankers, each carrying 1,000 or 1,200 gallons and sufficient additional firemen.

In each of the city's 4 corners a tanker would be stationed, Benton said, ready to answer calls outside the city limits.

There are 3 possibilities, the chief said: "to go on like we are," eliminate free outside fire runs, or form a rural fire district.

But the latter, Benton noted, all hinges on the people's desires. Comment has been favorable so far, he observed. "All it takes is somebody to get it going."

Life Is A Snap

By WILLIAM

Pay no attention to the fellow who laments that it's a tough life these days. If you will just take the time to look around a bit, you can see for yourself that life is a snap and getting to be more so every day. For instance, there is rapidly spreading across this land of ours a new coin-operated machine—one to dryclean your clothes.

Of course, none of us is drycleaning his own clothes these days so this device will not make things any easier for us. But it is billed as a money-saving convenience. And the innovation is certainly an example of the fact that technology is constantly improving the world we live in and making it easier for us in one way or another. But we hope the automatic drycleaning machines are an improvement over other self-help measures in this field of operations. Despite the years it has been on the market, the most frustrating thing in the world is regular household drycleaning fluid. Invariably, what it is supposed to do and what it will do are two different things.

The one thing you can rely on is that if you rely on the fluid, it will do you in. It is in times of desperation that the fluid is at its sinister best and its performance worst. As you are ready to walk out the front door for an evening of gaiety, a sticky-fingered child wants a goodnight kiss, which, of course, cannot be denied. But the strawberry sucker color deposited on you goes terribly with the black coat.

You rush for the cleaning fluid but your efforts are generally fruitless. Even worse is a delayed cleaning job in which the sucker spot or whatever it is has been allowed time to harden itself into the fiber of your garment. When this happens, you may as well give up because you will succeed only in wearing the garment thin with elbow grease.

Understandably, some of the regular drycleaning establishments are a little worried about this new entry into their field of operations. But it would be our prediction that drycleaning as we know it today is not necessarily on the way out. Coin-operated washing machines haven't ruined the business nor has frozen food put the restaurants out of business. For one thing, the drycleaning machines won't press a garment and neither will some women so this leaves the job to the regular drycleaning establishments.

But many things have come along which were considered a threat to an established industry with the expected results never materializing. Television has not put the movies out of business, home clippers haven't eliminated barber shops and stick-on soles have had little effect on the shoe repair business. There are times when progress is the doom of something already in existence but in many cases progress simply fills a previously unsatisfied need, even though this need may not have been recognized up until its time of satisfaction.

As an example, one might think that the need created by leaky faucets has been fully met. All you do is put in a new washer and you have the problem licked. Yet, the Ever-Wear Seal Co. of Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, has come out with a new washer it claims beats anything now on the market. It will work, according to its manufacturer, on faucets even 50 years old or older and lasts up to twice as long as the standard rubber washer used most prominently at this time.

Naturally, the thing has a secret—a bearing on one side on which wear predominates. The theory is that the washer turns when tightened on the metal bearing and against that part of the handle in which it is inserted. The washer doesn't turn on the faucet seat itself. And turning as it does in the handle, it naturally is not screwed in as most other washers are today.

A rubber prong on the washer is inserted into the handle hole which generally contains a screw for the other type of washers. This holds the washer in place and permits it to turn against the handle rather than the faucet seat. But one claim we can't swallow and that is that this washer is so simple, any woman can put it in a matter of five minutes. The fact is that one still must shut off the water to change even a simplified washer and the average housewife would spend a long time just finding the shutoff. And the shutoff being used so seldom is rather stiff and difficult, if not impossible, for most women to turn.

The danger in the Ever-Wear Seal Co. promotion is that women might get the idea that all you do is take out the faucet handle, change the washer and put things back together. This, of course, eliminates the shutoff step and would lead to wholesale flooding of kitchens. This is the kind of disaster that can come with over-simplification.

Not For The Girls

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, a production man and no public relations expert, is still somewhat shell-shocked.

Back in Detroit, while occupying the relatively peaceful life of a Ford executive, he chuckled when Charley Wilson of General Motors used to put his foot in his mouth. Now McNamara has followed the same rocky road—and all right under the eyes of his watchful public relations assistant secretary, Arthur Sylvester, formerly of the Newark News.

In fact, when McNamara and Sylvester finished their background session with Pentagon reporters at which McNamara discussed the so-called missile gap, they congratulated themselves on how well they had handled the press.

Next day it was different. President Kennedy read the story that there was no longer a missile gap and hit the ceiling. Quickly he tracked the story to his secretary of defense, asked for an explanation. McNamara and Sylvester both swore they had been misquoted, blamed reporters for the snafu.

What really happened — McNamara, wanting to please Pentagon reporters, and his new assistant secretary of defense, Art Sylvester, had the boys in for a few drinks and a "background."

What he actually said was that there was no "destructive" missile gap, and that the United States could heap as much destruction on Russia as Russia could on us; therefore, missile war became unprofitable.

McNamara contended that neither side has enough intercontinental missiles right now to make the gap significant, but warned that the gap could become dangerous for the United States if we don't take vigorous action to close it.

The facts—As far as this writer can ascertain from highly competent authorities, photographic evidence in the Pentagon shows 17 Russian ICBM bases with approximately 70 intercontinental ballistic missiles ready to fire.

In contrast, it is no secret that the United States has only two ICBM bases. And it's probable that we have about a dozen missiles ready to fire.

During the period since this evidence was obtained, there are reports that Russia has put some missiles on railroad trains, has hurriedly shifted other bases. The number may have increased above 17. We know that our number of bases hasn't increased beyond two.

In addition, Russia has an estimated 1,000 intermediate range missiles; we have perhaps around 100.

Finally, the USSR has just launched a huge 7-ton Sputnik, which means the Russians have terrific rocket power. We haven't been able to launch a missile of more than one ton.

In brief, we still have some missile problems.

Fundamental Issues Face Unemployment

WASHINGTON — The Congress is pursuing its traditional early session pace. A dozen senators led by Sen. Mike Mansfield, the majority leader, have been in Mexico on an inter-parliamentary conference, which had been planned last year. Congressional leaders say, when the matter of the sluggish pace is raised, that in any event the bills to implement the Kennedy program have not come from the executive branch.

In his State of the Union message, the President gave the figures on unemployment and the number of persons who had exhausted their unemployment benefits in painting his dark picture of the economy. He was using figures for December. Later estimates show more disturbing totals and a continuing downward trend.

The number of persons unemployed for more than 27 weeks went to an estimated 600,000 for January and it is expected to reach 700,000 or more this month. A large proportion are workers who were covered by unemployment insurance but who have now exhausted their benefits. Benefits in most states last for 26 weeks.

Many, according to Labor Department specialists, are heads of families who must turn to local relief. But local relief is virtually non-existent in most areas except for categories into which they do not fit.

Next week there will be additional automobile layoffs. In metal-working centers, employment is still turning downward. The number of workers unemployed more than 15 weeks is expected to total 1,300,000 this month, up 300,000, and it may climb as much as another half-million in February.

The privation that this means in a bitter winter is evident enough. The effect on the economy is also increasingly obvious as an ever-larger number of families are withdrawn from the spending stream. The quickest way to correct this is by providing up to an additional 13 weeks of unemployment benefits, as President Kennedy has asked. The estimates are that this will provide nearly $1 billion which would be spent at once for necessities of life.

The House Ways and Means Committee will hold hearings on a bill proposed by the White House next week. If the hearings are not too prolonged — over whether employers shall pay the full amount through an additional payroll tax — passage may come by March 1. Then the same process must be gone through with the Senate side where a longer time may be required.

The general assumption, and it still prevails, is that there will be a lively upturn in the economy in the spring which will erase much of the current unemployment. The President, as he made clear at his press conference, is following a policy of watchful waiting. If there is not a marked improvement by April 1, then drastic steps such as a tax cut will be recommended.

Wonders Of The Universe

Members of the psychology panel of the Armed Forces—National Research Council on Bio-Astronautics, have pieced together their ideas of how the earth might appear to the astronaut as he circles the earth.

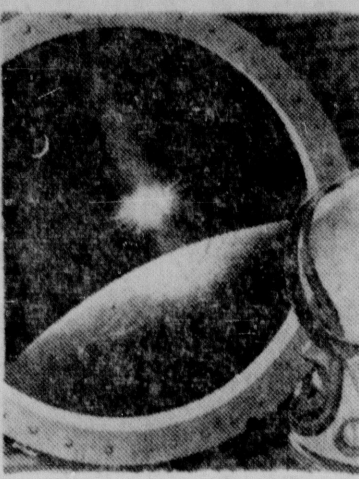

At an altitude of 100 miles, the astronaut will be traveling almost 18,000 miles an hour. The horizon will appear off in the distance—approximately 900 miles away from him. By looking straight ahead into his periscope he will see a circular area with a diameter of about 165 degrees with the center of the circle directly beneath him.

Because he will be in a 90-minute orbit, light and dark cycles will alternate as the capsule moves in and out of the sunshine. Thus his observations of the earth will be slightly complicated by the alternate periods of light and dark.

As the astronaut circles the earth, the most conspicuous surface feature will be the variation in cloud cover. Pictures from the Tiros weather satellites verify that cloud patterns will indeed be the most prominent feature to be seen.

When the astronaut is on the night side and views the earth, he will see it as a dark area against a star background — he will be too close to the earth to see it as a complete disk. Because of the complete lack of an atmosphere, the stars he sees will no longer twinkle but will look brighter by about 30 per cent. The psychologists agree that there will not be too many more stars to obscure or clutter up the constellations and make them unrecognizable.

Looking earthward, he will see the airglow. The Milky Way will appear as an irular band of light in the sky. With the astronaut on the night side of the earth, he will see the zodiacal light near the earth for this light is most intense near the sun. If the astronaut can look in the direction opposite the sun, he may see a small patch of faint light, rarely seen from the earth, which astronomers call the gegenschein or counter-glow.

Simulation studies and examination of orbital altitude photographs suggest that the gross topography of the earth will be distinguishable during daylight. Psychologists indicate that vision at 100 miles is characterized by the ability to recognize shape and pattern rather than to distinguish between small objects.

As an example of this type of identification they indicate that the coast lines such as the east and west coast of Florida will be readily distinguishable. Large lakes such as Victoria, bays as San Francisco, and gulfs as California may be distinguished because of their clearly defined shapes and positions in relation to land masses. Moderate-sized islands which have distinctive shapes such as Madagascar will be identifiable. Mountain ranges with characteristic ridges such as the Rockies will be seen. This is true especially when shadows increase the contrast. Groups of islands like those in the South Pacific will be recognizable because of the group patterns. Finally, major river systems like the Rio Grande and Nile, which are bordered by vegetation, will be recognizable primarily because of the increase in their width due to the bordering vegetation.

The ocean areas will be blanks to the astronaut unless he sees a readily distinguishable feature.

The color of the earth will not be too distinct. It will vary from blue-green for the water and areas of vegetation to a reddish brown over deserts.

Looking at the night side of the earth the astronaut may be able to distinguish large cities by artificial light emitted from the population centers and scattered by haze or clouds.

The astronaut can use a periscope which will magnify objects on the earth. The unaided eye at an altitude of 100 miles can distinguish between objects 1,500 feet apart. There are not too many manmade objects of this size that can be recognized. However, using a magnification of from 50 to 75 times, the astronaut will be able to see objects from 20 to 30 feet across. The only disturbing feature to visual identification will be the fast motion of the capsule. It is this motion of five miles a second which may limit the objects observable by the astronaut.

The mercury astronaut may circle the earth three times in orbital flight late this year.

Amarillo Water

Lincoln, Neb.

On Feb. 1, The Star published a letter from an Air Force dentist, a proponent of fluoridation. It may be interesting to know what an Air Force wife thinks of fluoridation. Some months ago this Air Force wife wrote me a letter describing her experiences with fluoride-containing water. She says, in part:

"During the war (WW II) my husband was stationed in Amarillo, Texas. When we arrived there, the first person we met was a beautiful young woman who had a daughter the same age as our six-week-old baby. But the young woman had very unattractive teeth. Her teeth were half covered with mottled brown stains. She immediately warned me not to give my baby any water from the tap, as the city water had too much fluoride in it, and that was what caused her teeth to be mottled."

The Air Force wife was not too much impressed at first, but goes on to say:

"... but after a few weeks I took my baby to the outpatient clinic for A.A.F. dependents. ... The Army doctor there also advised me not to give my baby any water from the tap for the baby's formula or drinking water. I immediately started buying Ozark Bottled Water for the baby's use."

Some other interesting observations by this Air Force wife were described in the letter, also.

"Each time I employed some girl as a baby-sitter, I noticed that every one had mottled teeth. One girl who was only 15 years old told me she was saving her money so she could buy false teeth. This puzzled me very much because I recalled having read an article ... relating to the study of the perfect teeth of the natives of a certain town in Texas ... attributed to the fact that there was fluoride in the water they drank. The girl explained that too much fluoride caused the teeth to become soft and chalky. Her own teeth had 'eroded' so much she could scarcely eat because food caused her teeth to pain."

"Another girl, 21 years old, was in the process of having all her teeth extracted for the same reason."

GEORGE W. COVEY, M.D.

Editor's Note: The Amarillo situation is not comparable with Lincoln. Amarillo has 3.7 parts of fluoride per 1 million parts of water, while it is proposed to bring Lincoln's fluoride content up from its present 4/10 of a part to a full one part per million parts of water. Exhaustive case history studies have shown absolutely no mottling or staining of teeth with water containing 1.5 parts of fluoride per million and no such mottling has been discovered with contents of 2.5 parts per million.

Also, Amarillo is in an area where much of the water has a natural fluoride content of up to even eight parts per million and either of the above two cases of mottling could have been the result of such high contents because it is not known where the two individuals involved were born—the factor which would determine any possible fluoride damage.

Mottling is not even certain in areas where the content of fluoride is eight parts per million because the remainder of the individual's diet, particularly his calcium intake, is a major determining factor in such mottling. Nor are we aware of any factual report whatsoever of a single case of teeth being "eroded" as the result of even a high concentration of mottling. Also, there is absolutely no scientific support of the girl's contention that she was losing her teeth because of fluoride. For all that is known beyond her opinion, the cause of her poor teeth could be attributed to almost anything.

Ten years ago I heard of Lincoln as the city with large, wide streets. After being here these years and working very closely with the service clubs, churches and interested individual citizens, I would like to add that Lincoln is not only a beautiful city with wide streets, but also with a big heart.

For the many things that are done that never get public attention and are very seldom known, my thanks.

Revenue Measures Advance

Its name alone attests to the difficulty of its job and the measures being considered by the Revenue Committee of the Legislature don't change the picture. The committee is toying with the idea of eliminating the tax on household goods and this is a mighty fine idea. Of all the ridiculous taxes, this one stands at the head of the class.

For one thing, it is not enforced and it is practically impossible to do anything about this. People report what they feel is about average for household goods and it would take a battery of assessors to turn the reports into anything resembling honesty. Also, items reported come in at grossly unequal figures.

Two people may have 1958 refrigerators and both may turn them in. Both would pay the same tax but one of the refrigerators might have cost $150 new while the other cost $500. But the household goods tax makes no provision for different original costs. There is hundreds of dollars and sometimes thousands of dollars difference in the original cost of many household items.

Of questionable merit, however, is the substitute being considered by the committee for the household goods tax. The substitute would be an increase in the head tax. The head tax is another one which is about as unfair as any tax can get. It has absolutely nothing to do with ability to pay and will work a distinct hardship in some cases and not even be felt in other cases.

Of merit, again, is the committee's action in putting a new penalty provision in for unreported intangible taxes. With the present penalty provisions having been declared unconstitutional, the intangible tax would degenerate into a force without new penalties being provided. The new penalty provision would not be as stiff as the prior one but it would put the minimum teeth needed into the intangible tax.

The events in Laos raises the question of the effectiveness of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization which seems to lack the essence that is evidenced by the operation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

While NATO, even in its debilitated condition, serves the purpose of maintaining European co-operation while posing sufficient military virtue to restrain Russia, there is little evidence that SEATO has much of a place in Laotian disturbance or would be effective if invoked.

This has caused the Philippines, a member of SEATO, and Malaya, a non-member to starting a study of possibilities of forming a successor organization, mainly an organization confined to countries in the Asian area with a good deal less, if any, direct participation by the United States. This could be a welcome change without the implication that the United States is an unwelcome force. Certainly if relieving this country of a power role which is more embarrassing than helpful will ease the way to better co-operation as an aid to the area's civilian progress then a forward step could be recorded in the Western cause.

Some organizations serve their purpose during a particular phase of world affairs, but that does not dictate their long range need. When Secretary Dulles was acting as prime mover in the organization of SEATO the concerns of that time made of it a triumphant diplomatic stroke. It defined a cleavage between the southeast Asian nations which aspired to freedom and those which were willing to experiment with communism, and that was needed. But that record has been made, and it could be that SEATO is obsolete.

He estimated that the one cent cut would eliminate some $5 million from state road-building coffers. In the face of current demands already far in excess of the state's ability to pay, it would seem incredible that the Legislature would give serious consideration to any cut. Nebraska ranks far down the line in Interstate Highway construction and could use a great deal more money in the primary and secondary road system.

If there was some question as to the efficient use of the extra cent of gasoline tax, then a cut would certainly be appropriate but this is not the case. Public officials who make cuts in essential services are not performing any service to the taxpayers but rather, are merely building up a tremendous headache for the future. When we fail to meet our responsibilities, we are handing a debt to future generations just as formidable and real as a dollar indebtedness.

The administrative change involves a switch from an advisory to an administrative board for the present Highway Commission. As Crosby noted, this is a division of authority and will only tend to inject politics and selfish interests further into Nebraska's road-building program. Passage of either of these proposals would be a setback for the state so it is hoped that Crosby's attitude prevails in the Legislature.

Base Bans Mag Hitting Marines

Camp Lejeune, N.C. (UPI) — "When I sing the Marine Hymn I believe every word of it."

Thus, Maj. Gen. R. B. Luckey, commanding general of the Camp Lejeune Marine base, explained his reason for banning base sales of a current issue of a national magazine carrying a story critical of the Marine Corps tradition.

Luckey's action was sparked by a story in the March issue of Cavalier magazine which was critical of the Marine Corps tradition. The story was authored by retired Brig. Gen. William B. McKean.

"It is part of my responsibility as commanding general that nothing be publicized on the base that is derogatory to the best traditions of the Marine Corps," Luckey said.

"I know the magazine in question can be bought anywhere," he said, "But I don't see why the Marine Corps should assist in the sale of something this destructive."

Luckey said he gave the order banning the sales because "the article attacked the time-honored traditions of the Marine Corps. Our enlisted personnel would wonder if these traditions were true."

"I don't know whether or not there were any Marines at Tripoli. How the hell would I know? But I've believed it for 33 years and I'm going to go right on believing it," he said.

"We go to a lot of trouble," he said, "training our young recruits in the proud tradition of the corps and now along comes a general to tear it all down. That's what hurts."

Luckey said he did not think young recruits should be shielded from all criticism of the corps but added, "it is my responsibility to see that subversive or pornographic or destructive material is not available on this base."

Luckey said that each case of a book, movie or magazine would have to be judged on its own merits.

Luckey commented on the importance of tradition in building the world-famous morale of the corps. "Morale among Marines is important," he said.

McKean, who was the commanding officer at Parris Island, S.C., in 1957 when 6 Marine recruits drowned in a creek during a night training exercise, told UPI he "didn't want to be stiff-necked" about the matter but he simply had no comment on Luckey's action.

McKean said everything in the article he wrote was documented and he certainly had not written it with any intention of undermining Marine morale.

An aide to the general said there are now about 3,000 young recruits at Camp Lejeune who have just finished boot training. "These recruits probably haven't seen anybody higher ranking than a sergeant and when they read something written by a general — and a Marine general at that — the chances are good they will believe it."

Hotel Burns

Wildbad, Germany (AP) — The Sommerberg hotel in this Black Forest resort went up in flames. A hotel employee, a 16-year-old girl, jumped to her death from a fourth floor window and another employee is missing, police reported. About 90 weekend guests in the $3 million structure escaped.

Red Relieved

Moscow (AP) — Pravda announced that M.K. Lazurenko has been relieved as Communist Party chief in the Lwow region of the Ukraine. The Soviet Communist Party newspaper said Lazurenko is being assigned to another leading post.

Equity Expanding

New York (AP) — Membership in Actors Equity is at an all-time peak, but Ralph Bellamy, president of the professional union, regards expansion with mixed feelings. There are now 12,002 cardholders, compared with 11,386 a year ago. Of this number, 2,524 are at work on Broadway and in staged productions under Equity's jurisdiction across the country. "We're getting an average of a hundred new members a week," says Bellamy, "and a hundred new heartaches."

Soviet Publishes French Version Of Plane Incident, At Same Time Declares It 'False'

Moscow (AP) — The Russians yielded Sunday to a French request to publish France's version of the Brezhnev plane incident, but side by side with it was a Soviet foreign office statement declaring it false.

All major papers published texts of the French reply to the Russian note, in which the French insisted the Soviet plane carrying President Leonid Brezhnev on a visit to Morocco and Guinea had swung too far south Thursday over the Mediterranean. This, the French contend caused 3 French jet fighters to buzz the presidential plane, and one of them fired tracers across its nose.

The French agreed they had received the flight plan, but added this plan had not been fully followed, since the Soviet plane deviated southward. It said warning shots were fired as signals only after the Soviet plane failed to respond to two attempts by the fighter planes to communicate by radio.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, in a reply to French Ministry Counsellor Jean de la Grandville, said the French had no right to demand that the Soviet plane identify itself when it was flying over the open sea. Gromyko's statement, as published Sunday, added sardonically "even if the crew of the French warplane did not have a single literate person who could read the markings (on the plane), could not the French fliers see a two-meter large Soviet national flag on the plane?"

Gromyko insisted the French plane opened fire on the president's plane, although the French declare the shots were signals and not fired at the plane. The Soviet plane was not hit.

Gromyko acknowledged French expressions of regret, but for all Soviet newspaper readers repeated his request that the French fliers be punished and warned that any attempt to "whitewash" acts "of international banditry" is a "risky undertaking."

Grandville told newsmen the exchanges would continue. It is evident Russia is not prepared to drop the issue.

France declared certain terms in a Soviet note about the Brezhnev plane incident were inadmissible.

A French note, addressed to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, repeated an assertion that France will advise the Soviet government of results of an investigation now under way.

Young People Demonstrate Against Segregation On Lincoln's Birthday

By The Associated Press
Hundreds of young people, white and Negro, North and South, demonstrated against segregation outside movie theaters Sunday.

In some Southern cities the Lincoln's birthday demonstrators made efforts to get into all-white sections of the theaters, often in pairs — one white youth and one Negro.

In New York, Boston and Chicago, students demonstrated outside theaters which do not segregate Negroes, but have common ownership with Southern theaters which do.

At San Antonio, Tex., there was an anonymous telephone report that a bomb had been placed in a theater shortly after a demonstration against segregation ended there. But none was found after a search.

At Austin, Tex., the pickets sang lustily to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" — words showing their disapproval of the segregationist policies of the governors of Louisiana and Arkansas.

"We'll send Jimmie Davis to an integrated hell," they sang, and "we'll hang Orval Faubus to a sour apple tree." About 50 students gathered in New York's Times Square and marched outside the big Paramount theater. Although the manager commented that "there is no segregation here," the marchers said they were protesting segregation policies of movie houses owned by American Broadcasting-Paramount Theaters, Inc. in the South.

There was no comment from ABC-Paramount. The same firm was the target in Boston, where some 50 young people marched outside the Boston Theater, and in Chicago, where a group of about 60 paraded outside several theaters partly owned by ABC-Paramount.

In Austin and Houston, Tex., the crowds of Negro and white demonstrators swelled to 200 or more. About 50 each marched in Dallas and San Antonio.

NEGRO 'PILGRIMAGE' REGULATED BY LAW

Rock Hill, S.C. (UPI) — A cordon of law enforcement officers set up an impenetrable barricade Sunday to block a negro pilgrimage to the York County Prison Farm where 11 sit-in demonstrators are imprisoned.

A ring of more than 100 policemen, mainly brown-clad state troopers, circled the prison farm as a caravan of more than 300 Negroes approached the farm.

The Negroes first efforts to enter the compound were stymied by stern-looking troopers and the caravan of more than 60 cars was forced to circle back and forth along a 10-mile stretch of highway in front of the prison.

Arrangements were finally made between Negro leader James McCain and Chief J. P. Strom of the state law enforcement division, to permit the Negroes to enter the compound 10 cars at a time, pay a 5 minute visit to the imprisoned sit-iners and then leave.

The Negroes had spread the word that they would stage the Pilgrimage — and the state prepared to meet them with a startling show of force.

State and local authorities, in a joint statement to the press, said they were of the opinion the proposed pilgrimage "would constitute a security problem and could result in violence."

Lincolnite Receives Fellowship

University Gets Microbiology Grant

A $134,657 grant in microbiology has been awarded to the department of microbiology of the University of Nebraska.

It is the first training grant of this type received in the College of Arts and Sciences. The grant, given by the Division of General Medical Sciences of the National Institutes of Health, will cover a period of 5 years and provide for the training of 4 doctoral candidates in microbiology each year.

Jointly directing the program will be Dr. Georgi and Dr. Richard Y. Morita, associate professor of microbiology, in collaboration with Drs. T. L. Thompson and W. E. Engelhard, both associate professors.

The department also announced that Ronald J. Downey of Lincoln will be the first recipient of a doctoral assistantship provided by the grant.

Downey, father of 3 children, received his Bachelor of Science degree from St. Regis, Denver, and his Master of Science in medical microbiology from Creighton University, Omaha. He is married to the former Mary Ann McAleer of Omaha. His work is in the area of electron transport systems of bacteria.

The recipients of the grant will be permitted to do teaching, along with their research and course work. One of the purposes of the grant is to develop interest in college teaching in the field of microbiology.

In addition to supporting pre-doctorate training, the grant also will provide nearly $30,000 for permanent and consumable equipment.

East Germans Block Bishops

Berlin (AP) — The East German Communists Sunday barred 6 Evangelical bishops and some other church officials of West Germany from entering East Berlin to attend a special service in the Marienkirche.

The service was held on schedule, however, before a congregation of about 2,000. It marked the opening of a week long session of the Evangelical Church Synod. The sermon was preached by Bishop Gottfried Noth of Dresden, in East Germany. He made no reference to the difficulties created by the Red regime.

The president of the all-German synod, Konstantin von Dietze, was among others refused permission to cross

Berlin's little iron curtain. When the ban on Von Dietze became known, a busload of church officials who had been given permits refused to cross through the Brandenburg gate into the Communist sector.

Church officials told reporters the red border police gave no specific reason for turning back the West German churchman, but told them they were "unwanted in the (East) German Democratic Republic."

BACK-TO-SCHOOL FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS- ANOTHER AK-SAR-BEN ACTIVITY

Every year, 30 Nebraska teachers are given the opportunity for advanced, post-graduate study under Ak-Sar-Ben's vast scholarship program. In addition, 20 county extension agents and 20 vocational agriculture instructors add to their education through Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships.

Through the years, thousands of Nebraska's young people have been given a helping hand in getting an education by Ak-Sar-Ben. More than 200 Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships are awarded every year. In addition, there are scholarships for agricultural judging teams, and loan funds for needy students.

For years to come, students in Nebraska will profit from the additional training Ak-Sar-Ben has made possible for their teachers. For years to come, the whole state will profit from the educational opportunities Ak-Sar-Ben has offered thousands of young people.

Kennedy Terms Goldberg Mission 'Worthwhile'

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg returned Sunday night from a 5-state inspection tour of unemployment areas with word that President Kennedy has found the mission "very worthwhile."

Goldberg said he put in a phone call to Kennedy before leaving Pittsburgh, Pa., last stop on his trip. The President was at his Middleburg, Va., country place, about 45 miles from Washington.

"The President told me he had followed the trip with great interest," the labor secretary said. "He thought it was very worthwhile."

Wide Support
Goldberg said that in talking with idled workers and their families, with businessmen, a labor leaders and community leaders he found widespread support for Kennedy's program aimed at restoring the nation to full production and employment.

Saying Kennedy is proposing both short term and long term economic uplift measures, Goldberg added:

"We can, we must and we will deal with problems we saw on this trip."

Not Political
The labor secretary said the country is suffering from an inherited recession, but he insisted again that the purpose of his tour, one of several he said he will make, was not political.

Asked to comment on criticism from some sections of organized labor that the Kennedy program does not go far enough, Goldberg observed "I would say to them we ought to step before we run."

Goldberg said he feels sure that if Congress will adopt Kennedy's proposals they can restore the country to full prosperity.

Understanding
Before leaving Pittsburgh, the labor secretary appeared in a television interview. He said:

"I think we have a better understanding now of the human problems reflected in the employment statistics."

"I have found a broad basis of support on the part of all the people of the country for the president's proposals," he added.

At Pittsburgh, chief steel center in a state that has about one tenth of all the nation's 5,385,000 unemployed, Goldberg again heard sad reports from unemployed workers and their families dependent on unemployed benefits or outright relief to keep alive.

Want To Eat
Mrs. Joseph Charney told the labor secretary at a Pittsburgh labor union hall that neither she nor her husband can find work "and when you have 4 children they want to eat."

"Things are pretty tough," Goldberg agreed. "But we in Washington are going to try to help you."

Ernest Clifford, laid off from his job in a steel plant after 19 years seniority, said his unemployment benefits are about to run out. Head of a family of 4, he said, "we don't know how we're going to get along."

Swallow Pride
"Next week I'm going to have to swallow my pride and go on relief," Clifford said.

Goldberg promised that the Kennedy administration will be a "do-something" administration in dealing with human problems of the nation's citizens. Priority is being given, he said, to getting the economy restored to full production and employment.

The labor secretary ran into some business opposition to Kennedy's proposal to raise the present $1 an hour minimum wage first to $1.15 and then to $1.25 in two years, and to extend the minimum to over 4 million now-exempt workers.

Then the big waves closed over Tony's head—and Robinson swam back to shore alone.

the Allegheny County area Retail Merchants' Association, protested that such legislation bringing retail workers under the law would cause additional "drastic and tremendous" unemployment because retailers could not afford it.

Overrides
Goldberg said employers had so contended when the original minimum wage was enacted a quarter of a century ago. But he said studies show the benefits of the law "far override any of the few difficulties encountered."

"You can't support a family on a $1 an hour wage," Goldberg said. "And I don't think the retailers of this country want their employees to be subsidized out of public relief."

A Republican congressman, Rep. James Fulton of Pittsburgh, said Goldberg could count on his support. He told the labor secretary at a meeting of unemployed steel workers that with economic troubles being encountered under both Republican and Democratic administrations "maybe both parties better wake up."

GUATEMALA — The jet flight to Panama climbed out of the San Francisco airport at 6 in the chill, grey morning — a chill, gray hour to a man whose sunny disposition does not rise until 8.

For this kind of morning, there is nothing better than two cups of coffee and the daydreams of the people who write the colorful travel folders.

"Guatemala," wrote the purveyor of plush prose, "is the Land of Eternal Spring." (Below the DC-8 wing, the sun threw salmon-rose rays through a scatter of clouds. I got the second coffee and read on.)

"It is the mystic land of the Maya. A land of ancient culture and beauty."

At this point, the seatbelt sign flashed on and we began descending into Los Angeles. So fast do the jets fly, you cannot even finish a travel folder.

With Los Angeles passengers aboard, Flight 515 took off again. It climbed rapidly to 32,000 feet and began sliding eastward along the Mexican border. The captain came on the loudspeaker: The flight would take four hours.

We would fly over Phoenix over El Paso over Tampico to Guatemala City.

The weather was good. Breakfast would now be served. Thank you.

The sun came out of the rose-colored clouds and stood, bright gold ahead of us in a blue silk sky.

"Is it really the Land of Eternal Spring?" I asked the stewardess as she put the breakfast tray in front of me. "I don't know," she said frankly. "It was raining in Guatemala City on our last trip."

The most mystic thing about the mystic Mayan, in my opinion, is that he was always flinging maidens in sacred wells.

This is a fantastic waste of maidens. (Probably doesn't do the well water any good, either.)

Nevertheless, the mystic Mayans were entranced with this spectacle. When crops were good, they loaded a maiden with gold ornaments. They threw her in the well. When crops were bad, they loaded a maiden with the same costume jewelry and — SPLASH!

This sort of important information is not contained in the travel folders.

"You may visit colorful highland villages," said the folder, "where descendants of the Mayan Empire live the same simple lives of their forbears. (Throwing chicks down wells is not my idea of the simple life.)"

"Or you may visit the great ruined Maya cities in the jungle splendors where antiquities are still being dug from the virgin-forest floor."

There was a blanket of white cloud cover over the Caribbean rim of Mexico. The north winds of this time of year pushed us along at well over 600 miles per hour.

Another culture the Mayans had I approve of.

They played basketball. Whoever lost got slaughtered — I mean scragged completely. No use complaining or asking for a return game. If you were on the team and you lost, the mystic Mayan police came out. And they cut you to ribbons.

If this could be brought up to date and applied to certain baseball teams, I would consider we had really got some good from the mystic Mayans.

"You may now fasten your seat belts," said the loudspeaker. "We are descending into Guatemala City. We hope to have you aboard again soon."

The jet slid down smoothly between the volcanoes that edge the valley.

And when we got out — everybody in their winter hats and coats — it was shirt-sleeve weather. About 78 degrees.

If there had been a well handy, I would have JUMPED in it.

2 NT		Pass		3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass	5 NT	Pass
4 ♠		Pass		4 NT	Pass	6 ♠	Pass	7 ♠	Pass

Opening lead — three of spades.

You run across all kinds of bidding systems in bridge, whether you stay in your own back yard or travel the world far and wide, the ingenuity of man knowing no bounds.

So, if you're baffled by the bidding sequence shown, particularly North's original pass, rest assured you are not alone. The deal was played and the bidding took place in the match between Italy and Sweden in the European championships in 1952.

Sitting North-South were the Italian pair of Franco and Giovini, inventors of the Marmic system. According to their method of play — believe it or not — an opening bid in first or second position denied the normal values for an opening bid, while a pass in first or second position guaranteed the values for an opening bid.

Hence, North's pass practically assured South that his side had at least a game, and when North jumped to two notrump, probably a small slam.

When North raised three spades to four, South, who at this point could have had a pretty worthless hand (in the system), employed Blackwood. Learning from the response that North held three aces, South boldly contracted for seven.

This venture turned out all right when East showed up with the doubleton queen of hearts, and the vulnerable grand slam was easily made for a score of 2,210 points.

When the Swedish pair of Lilliehook and Anulf held the North-South cards, they also arrived at the grand slam, though by less sensational methods. The bidding was:

North		East		South		West
1 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	5 NT	Pass	6 ♠	Pass	7 ♠	Pass

Again thirteen tricks were made, and the result was a tie. Both pairs arrived at an inferior grand slam contract, but luckily made it.

About all that the deal proved is that there's more than one way to skin a cat.

Dear Abby--

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I met this girl last June and we fell in love, boom! Just like that. I am 22 and she is 17. Her mother likes me but her father hates me so bad I have to see this girl on the sneak. You see, I just spent 15 months in prison and her father can't forget it. I have never seen her father and he refuses to even meet me. He told his daughter if he ever caught her with me he would break her neck. Abby, I am really a swell guy. I am going straight. I want to marry this girl, but how can I, when her father won't even let her go out with me? Please help me. Thanks a million.

GOING STRAIGHT

DEAR GOING: Put yourself in her father's boots. How would you like to have YOUR 17-year-old daughter "in love" with a fellow just out of prison? He has nothing against you personally, but he doesn't like your record. Even now you are sneaking behind his back. I advise you to stay away from the girl until you have "gone straight" for a year and are able to show by your actions — not only words — that you are a "swell guy."

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that it was all right for husbands to have a night out with the boys as long as the boys were boys. What about the wives? Don't you think while the boys are out we girls should hire sitters and also have a night out with the girls, as long as the girls are girls?

"THE GIRLS"
DEAR "GIRLS": Better pick another night. You might run into the "boys."

DEAR ABBY: Five of us have been in a car pool for about two years. Four of us are in our late 20's and one lady is about 50. From the minute this older lady gets into the car, no matter who is talking, she interrupts and monopolizes the conversation. She does this all the time. No one has been able to finish a sentence in two years. Our question: Is there a polite way to tell this older woman to KEEP QUIET so someone else can get a word in edgewise?

FRUSTRATED FOUR

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You are all adults, so rudeness should neither be tolerated nor excused because of "age." One of you should tell the offending party (nicely) the consensus of her fellow passengers. If she doesn't get it — or doesn't like it — let her get another car pool.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK AND DISILLUSIONED": Talk to your clergyman about an annulment. When a woman marries, she is entitled a man for a husband.

"What's your problem?"

For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to ABBY, in care of this paper.

BEAU CATCHER BOWS IN THE YOUTH PARADE

BY REBA AND BONNIE CHURCHILL

1. Now you can carry your weekend wardrobe in a handbag. That's the fashion right, travel light suggestions illustrated by Annette Driggers. All that is required is a basic dress and a handful of scarves. The 15-year-old, who was flown from her home in Freeport, N.Y., to Hollywood, Calif., to appear on CBS-TV's "The Aquanauts," wears a white silk ascot around a blue wool, which is secured with a decorative clip.

2. Once in Hollywood,

CBS-TV designer George Whittaker showed her some TV tricks which expand a girl's wardrobe. One dress blossoms into four when a metal ring is slipped through a scarf, which as Annette models, is shaped like a Peter Pan collar, and tied in the back. Also a king-size polka-dot bow, a silk scarf twirled lariat fashion, and striped neckpiece with a slip-through slit, add perky changes of pace.

3. For a dressy occasion, the scarf becomes both a collar and vest-like front. A small metal ring is sewed to one tip of the square scarf, then the three other ends are pulled through. Finally, fabric is fanned into an attractive jabot, that gives the one basic dress more lives than a cat.

P.S. Searching for a flattering hair style? Our pamphlet, "Star Styles," provides fully-illustrated ideas on how to set and comb hair into exciting coiffures. Send 10c and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Youth Parade-Star Styles," c/o this paper, The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb. Due to volume of mail only those enclosing

Tulecki of Lincoln, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Edwards of San Francisco, took place at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Arlington. The Rev. Joseph Gusek of Lincoln served Mr. Tulecki as best man, and seating the guests

Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta created the gown chosen by the bride. Lace fashioned the long-sleeved bodice, designed with a Sabrina neckline patterned with sequins and iridescents, and was repeated in applique on the wide, tulle skirt which was given added bouffancy with a back panel of deep flounces of tulle. A crown of pearl flowers, held to the head her double-tiered veil of illusion, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Conservation Interest Big

... FOR MISS IVAH GREEN

By Dean Terrill
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Crete — "Dad, something must be done about that gully in the pasture. How about a grassed waterway, with maybe a good stand of brome or Reed's canary grass to cut erosion?"

The 3rd grader who sprang that on her farmer-father probably shocked him some, but what a jolt he'd get if he realized the source of such ideas.

Sure, they came from her rural teacher—and books and soil conservationists and even the State Department of Education. But the one person perhaps most responsible for the suggestion is Ivah Green, Doane College professor who looks no more like a conservationist than she does a coal miner.

Actually the handsome teacher-writer-lecturer is no conservationist, for her professional field is education. But she so caught the spark in her lone college conservation course that her "extra-curricular" activities have made her a renowned figure in the field.

"Conservation is so much more far-reaching than just showing someone how to plow," she enthused. "It's sort of spiritual."

Extremely Active

Since coming to Doane from the Iowa State Department of Education in 1953, Miss Green has been especially active in promoting summer conservation workshops for elementary teachers. Besides one at

Legion Auxiliary Hits Membership Record

A total of 125 new members were initiated in the American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 3 at a special session at the Legion Club.

Mrs. Loran Cottrell, membership chairman, reported that there is now an all-time high membership total of 1,150 in the Lincoln unit.

Meeting Set

Mrs. R. D. Stage of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska Department of the American Legion Auxiliary, announced that the 28th annual educational conference will be held in North Platte Feb. 18 and 19 at the Pawnee Hotel. Mrs. Andrew Eaton, North Platte unit president, and Mrs. W. C. Christian of North Platte are the local chairwomen.

To Visit Omaha

Omaha (P) — Arthur Harrison Motley, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce will head a team of businessmen in Omaha March 6 for a special discussion of business problems. Motley is publisher of Parade Magazine.

Doane each year, they have been held at Winnebago, David City, Neligh, McCook and Nebraska National Forest.

"We have had well over 200 teachers attending, nearly all women, and in turn they pass on facts about wildlife and soil and water to their pupils," she explained. "It is a potent force, because the children then introduce ideas into their homes."

The recipient of 3 conservation awards, the professor has written 7 children's books since 1950 presenting her ideas on the subject. Another, stressing the value of grasslands, is underway.

"I lived on the farm as a girl, yet I'm not really an outdoor person at all," Miss Green continued. "But I am concerned that people don't even know what the soil under their feet is made of, yet are studying space travel."

Workshops Set

Two of the two-week workshops are already scheduled for next summer (Nebraska National Forest and Jeffrey Park) and a number of one-day institutes probably will be held also. Men speakers are invited to the sessions, and Miss Green credits them with "making Nebraska one of the leading states in this type of education."

"We wouldn't get far without the help of such groups as the State Soil and Water Conservation Committee and their district supervisors," she stated.

Workshops similar to hers have been started at other state colleges, and some schools require conservation courses now for education graduates.

A graduate of St. Cloud State College in Minnesota, Miss Green received her master's degree at George Peabody College at Nashville, Tenn.

She admits she may be the only woman in the state "who gets so fired up about conservation." But one thing for sure—if Miss Green has her way, there will be others.

Era Comes To End At Wayne

Wayne — An era ended last week at Wayne State Teachers College.

Prof. Fred G. Dale delivered his final lecture and retired after 40 years on the faculty.

No other present member of the faculty has taught here that long.

He taught geography and conservation.

However, oldtimers will recall his exploits in athletics at Wayne and the University of Nebraska.

Goes Way Back

His association with Wayne goes even further back than his teaching and coaching career which began in 1921.

He earned a two-year diploma in 1916 when Wayne was a two-year normal college.

Dale went to the University of Nebraska and continued the athletic feats that had already made him a legend at Wayne.

He lettered in football and track for 3 years (one counted as a war year) and earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees at the University.

The 1921 Cornhusker yearbook commented thus of his football record:

"Fred found his stride in the Kansas game this year and proved to be a mighty powerful ground gainer. Along with his 200 pounds of beef, Dale has speed that gives him a chance to make big gains when he once breaks away."

1,000 Persons Come With Oil

McCook (P) — Discovery of oil has meant a small population boom in the Southwest Nebraska area.

In the 5 years since the discovery of oil in a northwest Kansas city, more than 1,000 persons have moved into the 3 Southwest Nebraska counties and the two in Kansas that contain the oil.

As of last week, there were 322 producing oil wells in Red Willow, Hitchcock and Dundee counties in Nebraska and DeCATur and Rawlins on the Kansas side.

$22 Million Likely

To Be Handed Back To State Taxpayers

Omaha (P) — More than $22 million is due to be handed back to Nebraska taxpayers this year.

This word comes from Richard P. Vinal, district director of the Internal Revenue Service.

It represents a return of money paid during 1960 in excess of taxpayer's obligation.

Some 220,000 of the 503,000 persons who file income tax returns in the state will receive refunds averaging $100, Vinal said.

Omaha Moms Planning Visit To Unicam On Dog Problem

Omaha (P) — A group of Omaha-area mothers plan to head for Lincoln this week.

Their aim is to get something done about the dogs which roam free in suburbs ringing the city but not a part of it.

They plan to ask the Legislature's Health and Welfare Committee to tighten up state law dealing with canines.

Recent cases include a kindergarten class held prisoner in a classroom cottage for half an hour one afternoon by a German Shepherd dog.

This same dog, according to Mrs. Lorraine Gilles, principal of 4 suburban schools, has bitten 6 children and killed a neighbor's boxer.

State law, unlike that of the city, makes no provision for leashing animals.

Pressure In Big 8 At Top And Bottom

... NEBRASKA AT IOWA ST. TONIGHT

By Bob McCoy
The pressure is on both top and bottom teams in the Big 8 Conference basketball standings this week.

Kansas State and Kansas remain in a deadlock for the loop lead with 6-1 records. They form the better half.

From 3rd place to 8th is where the scrambling takes place. This week's schedule could settle positioning or cause a more-gnarled lineup.

Missouri took 3rd place Saturday night with a 4-3 record, beating Oklahoma 94-78. But the Tigers face K-State and Kansas this week. Colorado, in 4th with a 3-4 mark, has the same assignment — Kansas State and Kansas.

Bottom Battle

The bottom 4 — Iowa State and Oklahoma State (3-5) and Nebraska and Oklahoma (2-5) — battle each other.

Iowa State, which has lost 3 of its last 4 loop games by a total of 5 points, has the best chance to gain. The Cyclones play Nebraska tonight and Oklahoma Saturday at home.

Nebraska hosts Oklahoma

State Saturday and O-State and Oklahoma play at Stillwater Tuesday night.

Iowa State lost 66-65 to Kansas State at Manhattan Saturday night, blowing a 10-point lead in the final minutes.

Peithman Star

Al Peithman, K-State sophomore from Hebron, Neb., hit the winning bucket with 9 seconds left. Two weeks ago Peithman scored the deciding basket in a 72-70 Wildcat victory at Ames.

Nebraska, like Iowa State, missed its chance for an upset Saturday night when Kansas solved a Husker slowdown for a 38-33 victory.

Nebraska lost 66-58 in its earlier meeting with Iowa State this year.

Big Henry Whitney and little Gary Wheeler dealt the Huskers fits that evening and can be expected to do the same tonight.

Freeze?

Whether Nebraska uses its freeze tonight probably won't be known until game time.

The NU-Iowa State varsity game follows a match of the two schools' freshmen teams. Nebraska's frosh opened their brief schedule with an 80-52 trouncing of Fairbury Junior College Saturday night.

If Kansas and K-State maintain their winning paces this week, a Feb. 22 meeting at Manhattan determine the Big 8 crown.

Kansas beat the "Cats 75-66 at Lawrence in Big 8 play while K-State won 69-66 in overtime in the finals of the loop's pre-season tourney.

Monti ... Bleeding After Record Performance

Monti Shatters Record To Win Bobsled Title

... AMERICAN TEAM FINISHES SURPRISE SECOND

Lake Placid, N.Y. (P)—Steel-nerved Eugenio Monti of Italy, rocketing so fast his sled smashed into a tree beyond the finish line, won his 5th straight world two-man bobsled championship Sunday with a record-shattering performance.

Gary Sheffield, a U.S. Marine from Lake Placid, finished a surprising second in the two-day, 4-heat competition down the icy, mile Olympic run. The other American sled, driven by Bill Dodge of New York, was 7th.

Monti's sled hardly touched the run in the 4th and final heat as he and brakeman Sergio Siorpaes flashed down in one minute, 9.22 seconds — fastest official mark ever for a two-man sled.

Sled Smashes

The sled was moving so fast that Siorpaes was unable to slow it during the 150-yard "braking area" beyond the finish. The sled smashed into a tree and Monti was cut slightly around the nose when he was thrown into the battered sled.

His cumulative time for 4 heats, 4:42.67, also was a record, well under the old mark of 4:52.83 set by American Stan Benham in 1957.

This fantastic performance beat back Sheffield, the biggest surprise of the two-man event.

Sheffield did 4:45.74 and the crowd of nearly 6,000 cheered him all the way down on his final run as he sought to end Monti's bobsled domination. But his 1:10.41, good as it was, could not match Monti's final performance.

Tension

The title went on the line on 5 consecutive races in the middle of the final heat. Monti after doing 1:17.17 in the 3rd heat, held an advantage of 2.69 seconds over teammate Sergio Zardini. Sheffield, Dodge, and Switzerland's Hans Zoller, and was the final sled among the quintet for the final run.

Dodge, riding with Steve Phillips, went first and faded with a 1:12.68 for 4:48.24. Sheffield with Gerry Tennant, of Princeton, W.Va., came next, and seemed on the way until the final quarter-mile, below the tremendous zig-zag section, where he lost time.

Zardini, who trailed his teammate by only 72 hundredths of a second going into the final run, just missed. He hit the wall at the curve below Big Shady and again at Zig-Zag and finished with a 1:12.45, his poorest heat of the competition.

Zoller turned in 1:11.62 and faded before Monti came on with his record-breaker to get the title.

Zardini finished 3rd with 4:46.62. Franz Schelle of Germany, a contender early in the 4th heat, also faded, and wound up 4th. Zoller and Max Angst, another Swiss, got the next two places.

Blood Specks

Monti's face was speckled with blood when he climbed out of his sled. He said he relaxed the controls when he crossed the finish line, causing the sled to run away.

The only other casualty was Germany's Hans Roesch, who suffered a multiple fracture of the right elbow when his sled careened off a curve between Zig-Zag and the finish. The jolt threw his brakeman, Theo Bauer, out of the sled. Bauer was unhurt. Roesch was disqualified because he finished without a brakeman.

Sanders Fires Record, Ties Arnie At Phoenix

Short Swinger Tabs 62 To Make Up 8 Strokes

... FORCES PAIR INTO PLAYOFF TODAY

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — Short swinging Doug Sanders shot a course record 62 Sunday to come from 8 strokes off the pace, tie Arnold Palmer for 72 holes at 270 and force the $30,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament into a playoff.

The two par-wreckers will tangle over an 18-hole route at 11 a.m. (CST) today. The winner will pocket $4,300; the runnerup $3,000, and each will take a 4th of the day's gate receipts.

Sanders, playing 4 holes ahead, finished his spectacular 8-under-par performance and waited nervously for Palmer, the only one in the field with a chance to tie or beat him, to come in.

Palmer came up to the 18th hole needing a birdie 4 to tie and got it the hard way, by sinking a sloping 8-foot putt. Fleck Third Defending champion Jack Fleck, who defeated Bill Collins in a playoff last year, just missed making it a 3-way tie. He came in with a 69 for a 72-hole total of 271 to take 3rd money of $2,000.

Palmer went into the final round with a two-stroke lead over Fleck, and Sanders was so far back no one considered him a contender for top spot.

But it was a case of Palmer's fighting tree, trap and bush trouble while Sanders, of Ojai, Calif., was shooting what he called unquestionably the finest golf of his life.

Sanders, 27, whose drives missed the fairway once Sunday and only twice in all 72 holes, chopped 5 strokes off par on the tough first 9 with a brilliant 29. He knocked off 3 more coming in and just missed an eagle 3 on the 18th hole when his 45-foot putt pulled up an inch and a half short of the cup.

Hitting every green in regulation, Sanders had birdie putts of 10 feet at the second hole, 4½ at the 3rd, 15 at the 6th, one at the 18th, 15 at the 9th, 6 at the 14th, 35 at the 15th and his tap-in on 18. He parred the 10 other holes.

The only time he failed to hit the fairway this afternoon was on the 430-yard par-4 6th. His ball landed in the rough, leaving him a low shot under the trees to reach the green.

His scraped 6-iron poke, which he later described as "the greatest shot of my life," went to within 15 feet of the hole. He sank the putt for a birdie.

*Sanders Frets

Sanders fretted and spoke prophetically while Palmer played the last 4 holes. "That guy has caught me a few times before in the final rounds," Sanders said. "He did it at Pensacola last year when he had only 9 putts on the last 10 holes."

Palmer, famous for his fast finishes, had 3 one-putt greens for birdies on the last 6 holes Sunday, and but for an unplayable lie would have nosed out Sanders.

Dreaded Oleander

"I only did one thing wrong on those last 6 holes," Palmer said. That was when he hooked his tee shot into a dreaded oleander bush on the short par-4 16th. An unplayable lie was ruled and Palmer suffered a one-stroke penalty, winding up with a bogey 5.

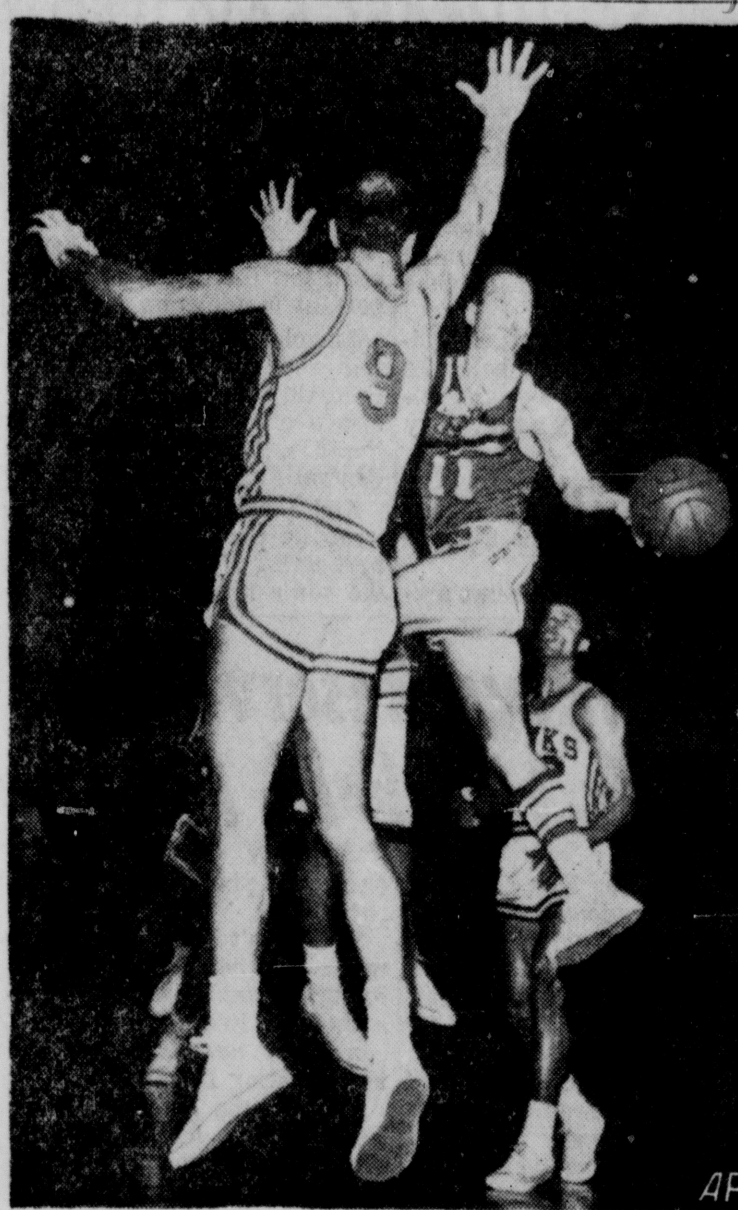

Palmer had 4 bogeys and 4 birdies as he played each 9 in even par.

Don January finished at 272 for 4th place. Dave Marr and Johnny Pott tied at 274.

Sanders' sizzling 62 broke a record which had stood only two days. The previous mark, a 63, was set by part-time touring pro Henry Williams of Fleetwood, Pa., in Friday's second round.

Williams faded badly the last two days and won only $25 for a 4-way tie at the bottom of the prize list.

Lucas On Splurge To Save Buckeyes

... OHIO STATE RUNS UP NO. 23

The Associated Press
Ohio State's bustlin' Bucks have their 23rd straight victory and are a step closer to defense of their NCAA basketball championship today because All-America Jerry Lucas can be a one-man show when he needs to be.

Usually "content" to score his 25 points while leading the rebounders and practicing the art of pivot play-making, big Luke turned gunner of necessity Saturday night when the nation's No. 1 team found itself in trouble at East Lansing against stirred-up Michigan State.

Result? Lucas set a Big Ten record of 48 points, cashing 19 of 26 field goal attempts, and brought the Bucks from a halftime deficit to an 83-67 victory.

The Lucas bust-out fired Ohio State to its 18th victory this season, and an 8-0 Big Ten record heading into next weekend's showdown conference pair on the road at Iowa and Indiana. The Midwest's game of the year could be the Buckeyes at Iowa next Saturday — with the Iowa Hawks still clawing impressively despite the loss of 4 regulars because of poor grades. The revamped Hawkeyes (13-3) held on to a close-up second in the Big Ten race at 5-1 with a 74-67 decision over the Hoosiers at Indiana Saturday.

In addition to top-ranked Ohio State and 9th-pegged Iowa, the 4 other top 10 members who played Saturday

T.V. LARK WILL REST

Arcadia, Calif. (P)—T. V. Lark, a disappointment during the current Santa Anita meeting, is through racing for the winter, the 4-year-old star's trainer said.

Paul Parker said T.V. Lark, winner of 5 $100,000 races in the East last year, will be rested and brought back this summer at Hollywood Park.

Memphis State, one of 4 teams signed for the National Invitation Tournament, made it 17-2 by clipping Villanova 78-74 in a Philadelphia Palestrina match. Detroit (NIT) topped Notre Dame in the national TV game 82-71, and DePaul (NIT) routed Tampa 101-68.

Another NIT club, Providence, may have been caught looking ahead to St. Bonaventure. The Friars lost their 37-game home-court string and their 9-game win streak, 78-76 to Rhode Island, current leader in the Yankee Conference.

Second-ranked St. Bonaventure (18-1), honing for tonight's key test at Providence, used 27 points by Tom Stith, 26 by Freddie Crawford and 20 by Whitey Martin for a 103-69 rout of Boston College. Fourth-ranked Bradley (16-4) snapped its doldrums and moved within a half game of Cincinnati in the Missouri Valley Conference scramble, whipping St. Louis 69-54 with Chet Walker scoring 31 points.

North Carolina, No. 6, broke a two-game slump with a 93-78 romp over Wake Forest as York Larese scored 30 points and Doug Moe 25.

St. Bonaventure, already in the NCAA-tournament field as an at-large selection, pushed its streak to 9 while joining 5 other tournament-bound teams on the winning list. Houston (NCAA) routed Oklahoma City 107-78, with Tommy Thomson scoring 26 points and Gary Phillips and Ted Luckenbill hitting for 23 apiece. St. John's (NCAA) got 23 points from Leroy Ellis and 22 from All-America Tony Jackson in a 95-60 rout of Syracuse.

Memphis State, one of 4 teams signed for the National Invitation Tournament, made it 17-2 by clipping Villanova 78-74 in a Philadelphia Palestrina match. Detroit (NIT) topped Notre Dame in the national TV game 82-71, and DePaul (NIT) routed Tampa 101-68.

State championship meets in wrestling and swimming top the slate for Lincoln clubs this week.

The Public Schools Activities Bldg. will host both the swim meet and Class A wrestling in Friday-Saturday shows.

Wrestling is split for the first time, and Pius X will send its squad to the Class B meet at Holdrege.

Lincoln wrestling teams are n't expected to make too big a mark, although they'll get their share of points. But the Lincoln Southeast swimmers will be favored to grab a 3rd straight state title.

Basketball takes a backseat, but there are some important matches on tap.

Lincoln High, fighting to retain the second spot in the Inter-City League race, and also a chance for a share of the title, goes to tough Omaha Central Friday.

And Lincoln Northeast can wrap up the Mid-East crown by beating Fairbury at home the same night. The Rockets also journey to Columbus on Saturday.

University High has a pair of games in Lincoln, entertaining hapless Plattsmouth Friday and then journey across town to meet Pius X Saturday in a traditional battle. Pius is at Omaha Cathedral Friday for a rematch. Cathedral took a 51-49 decision here in January.

Lincoln Southeast has a single game at Omaha Westside Friday, and should add to Westside's miseries this year.

McCook Wraps Up 5-JC Cage Crown

... PERU ONE WIN OUT IN NCC

McCook added the 5-JC Conference basketball championship to its football title last week to maintain its domination of Nebraska junior college athletics.

The Indians had to close fast to defeat stubborn Norfolk, 87-86, but smashed Luther in inspired fashion, 102-76, the next night.

Meanwhile Scottsbluff was taking one-two knockout blows on the chin, losing to Fairbury, 80-72, and Luther, 70-65.

McCook's loop record is 6-0 with just two games remaining. Scottsbluff and Fairbury each have 3 losses and cannot overtake the powerful Westerners.

In the Nebraska College Conference Peru stretched its lead with a timely boost from Doane.

Doane knocked off the Bobcats' main contender, Kearney, 93-90, while Peru was gaining revenge on Wayne, 76-66.

The Bobcats are 8-1, two and a half games ahead of Kearney.

TEN REMAIN UNBEATEN

Only 10 Nebraska prep teams remain unbeaten as two more were chopped from the list last week. York and De Witt were the victims.

Fairfield and York St. Joe, both with 16 victories, have completed their regular season schedule.

Other D teams on the list are Hordville, Indianola, Weston and Madrid, each with 19 wins. Polk 18, Amherst and Arcadia 15.

Alma, with 15 victories, is the only Class C team with a perfect slate.

St. Louis (P)—Pancho Gonzales whacked his way to an 8-3 victory over rookie Earl Buchholz in pro tennis here.

DiMAGGIO, WILLIAMS RETURN TO WORK AT JOBS THEY KNOW BEST—HOW TO HIT

By Steve Snider

New York (UPI)—Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams are coming back — to a job they know best.

Common Sense

The two great sluggers, deadly rivals over the years, bring a touch of common sense to baseball's spring training grind this year by returning as batting instructors for the clubs they served with distinction as players.

DiMag will spend a two-week "baseball vacation" helping the Yankees while Ted starts his year-round duties with the Red Sox as a batting tipster in the Boston camp at Scottsdale, Ariz.

The Red Sox rate a special cheer for putting Williams to work the spring after his retirement. Ted quit at the end of the 1960 season which he wound up with a .316 average and a 29 homer spurge.

Laurence Owen Skates To Win

... FOR ONLY U.S. FIRST PLACE

Philadelphia (P)—Perky Laurence Owen of Winchester, Mass., was the only American winner in the North American figure skating championships as Canada's top amateurs skated off with 3 of the 4 titles.

Miss Owen, edged Wendy Griner, Canadian national champion, for the women's singles crown.

The vivacious lass from staid old New England whirled, spun and jumped to her first international title in a series of intricate maneuvers that delighted the crowd.

She recently won the U.S. national crown.

Miss Owen's victory, however, was the beginning and the end of U.S. success in this biennial competition between the two countries. The Canadians took everything else in sight to win the unofficial team title.

Like the Olympic Games, the North American meet is billed as a test of individuals, not teams.

Donald Jackson, 20-year-old Oshawa, Ont., bronze medal winner at last year's Olympics, easily defended his singles title against the challenge of Bradley Lord, U.S. champion from Boston. Lord skated well, both in Saturday's compulsory figures and Sunday's free skating, but the handsome Canadian simply was too good for the Americans.

In the other competition, the Toronto duo of Virginia Thompson and William McLachlin won the dance and Maria and Otto Jelinek, sister-brother team from Bronte, Ont., captured the pairs with almost ridiculous ease.

The most stirring victory of the two-day meet was that of the Jelineks, Czechoslovakian exiles now living in Canada.

During a practice session Saturday night, the Jelineks fell while doing one of their eye-catching lifts. Otto was carried from the rink unconscious to nearby Misericordia Hospital where he was treated for a slight concussion. Three stitches were used to close a head wound and he also wrenched his back.

Maria was cut on the right thigh by one of Otto's skates. In addition, she suffered a pulled muscle and a left hip bruise.

The Canadian pair was told by doctors not to skate. But the game competitors disregarded the advice and gave a spectacular performance that earned first place votes from all 5 judges. They even executed the lift which led to their accident.

Miss Owen had to come up with one of her best efforts to beat the determined Miss Griner, a petite 16-year-old from Toronto.

The Massachusetts skater began Sunday's competition with a slight lead over her Canadian rival as a result of the compulsory figures. Miss Griner, however, took the ice first and thrilled the crowd with a smooth, fast, artistic performance.

Then came Miss Owen, who couldn't help but feel the pressure of the Canadian's fine exercise. She had to top anything she had ever done before to maintain her lead. She did just that.

Omaha (P)—Three goals in less than a minute midway in the 3rd period enabled Omaha's Knights to whip St. Paul, 7-4, Sunday night in an International Hockey League game.

The Knights started the last period with a 4-3 lead, with the visitors giving Omaha goalie Glenn Ramsey a rough time for the first 10 minutes.

Then Paul Payette put Omaha ahead, 5-3, and 18 seconds later, it was 6-3 on a goal by Dave Gordichuk. Seconds later Greg Jablonski pushed across the final goal of the game.

—NEW KANSAS CITY LOOK—

Lane's Trades To Help Athletics Hopes—Gordon

13th in a series of major-league team prospects written under the managers' own bylines)

Kansas City A's

By Joe Gordon

Sacramento, Calif. (P)—I'm sure no one had any doubts about the Athletics taking on a new look once Frank Lane took over as General Manager last month.

Frank has made a couple of deals already and both helped our club. We needed catching help badly, so the trade with Baltimore in which we got Clint Courtney has to be regarded as an important one for us.

Courtney has the experience and particularly the hustle every manager likes to see in his ballplayers.

Al Pilarcik, Bob Boyd, Wayne Causey and Jim Archer, the other players we got from the Orioles, also should be of assistance. Before we got Causey there was only one other shortstop on our roster.

He is Dick Howser, who turned in a fine season with Shreveport last year. Rookies, even those as highly regarded as Howser, are unpredictable. So, it's nice to know that we have someone to back him up.

De Sapio Defends Himself On TV

DEMO BATTLE
OVER BOSSISM
RAGES IN OPEN

New York (UPI) — The smoke-filled room gave way to the bright lights of a television set Sunday when the head of Tammany Hall added a new touch to big-city politics with a professorial TV lecture defending himself against charges of bossism.

Quoting Abraham Lincoln and Disraeli and speaking in a slow quiet voice, Carmine de Sapio, suave 51-year-old chairman of the New York County Democratic Committee — better known as Tammany Hall — began an hour-long appearance with an explanation of why he wore dark glasses.

"I do not wear them for the purpose of concealment," he said. "I understand perfectly well that in the sensitive business of politics, they are no asset to a political leader."

Very Painful

De Sapio explained that since the age of 15 he has suffered from iritis, "an arthritic condition of the eyes," which makes light "very painful to me."

"There is another thing that is very painful to me," he added, "and that is the need for me to tell you the things I must tell you today."

The leader of the Democratic organization that encompasses Manhattan Island complained that he had been "accused and vilified" by party reformers led by former Gov. Herbert Lehman and Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

"Only one group raises the issue of bossism," de Sapio said. "That's the group that wants to be the bosses."

Keeps On

De Sapio said that despite charges against him, he just keeps right on doing what he thinks is best for the Democratic party, working 7 days a week and making himself available at all times to anyone wishing to see him.

Wagner and Lehman have demanded that De Sapio resign as county chairman. De Sapio, stung by this demand, charged today that both men have accepted his help and backing in the past when they were running for office but now have turned against him.

It would not be right for him to resign, de Sapio said, because he is the duly elected official of the party.

Lecture

With that, de Sapio launched into a painstaking lecture on the structure of the Democratic party and Tammany Hall.

"Tammany Hall," he said, "for years has unfairly and unjustly been stigmatized as something sinister and evil. But even those who are most outspoken in their attacks against Tammany Hall must admit that it is indecent and immoral to visit the sins of the ancient past upon the New York Democratic County organization."

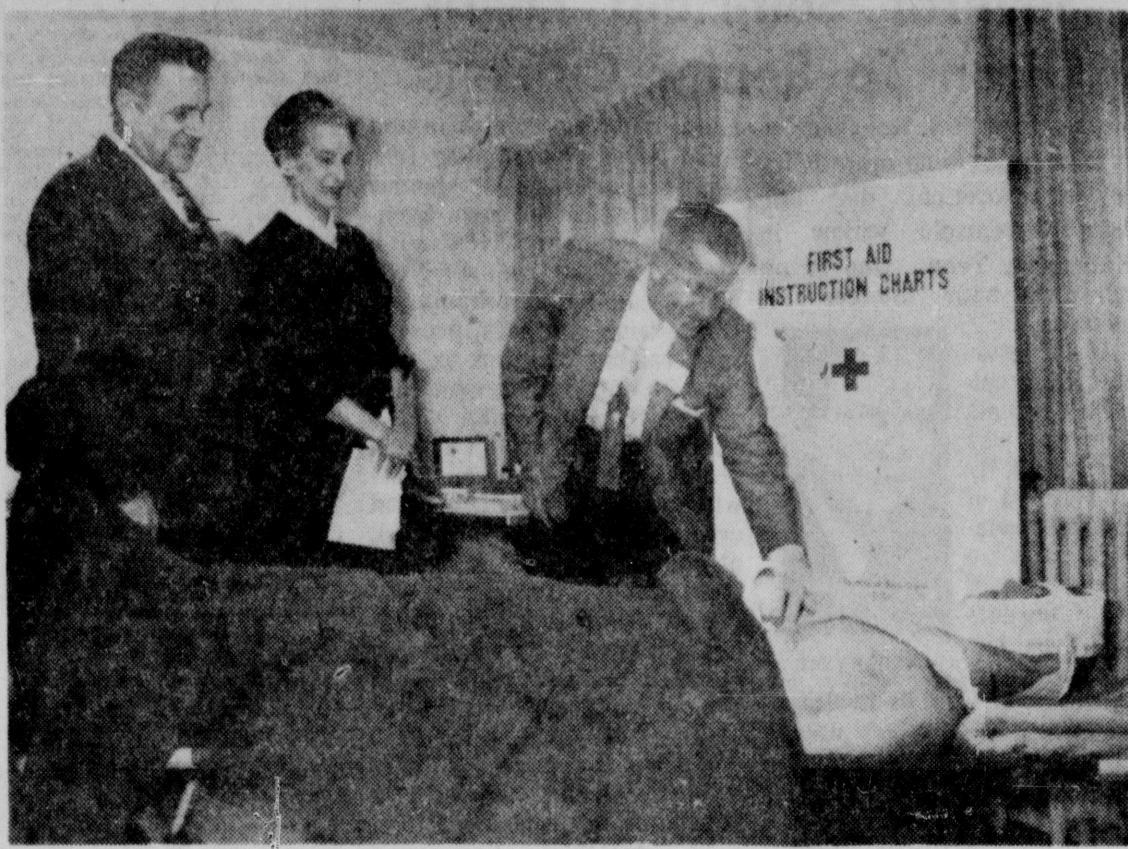

The party needs supervision he said, just as a corporation must be directed and the total program "has always been geared to the wishes of the people."

No Supermen

"There are no supermen," he said, "no bosses in the Democratic party — whether elected, self-proclaimed or so declared. The suggestion that anyone is a boss is an insult to all of the leaders and to the people whom they represent."

At one point, he quoted Benjamin Disraeli as saying, "it is far easier to be critical than correct," and he marked Lincoln's birthday by concluding his formal address with this quotation:

"I do the very best I know how; the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would not make me right."

Open House

Open house tours at the new home of the Lancaster Co. chapter of the American Red Cross, 1701 E. Star, attracted approximately 500 persons Sunday.

The afternoon open house was the first held by the Red Cross since its move Sept. 8 into the $75,000 building from 312 So. 12th.

The quarters, purchased with estate bequest funds accumulated over the past 15 years, has two floors for offices, and a basement kitchen, classroom and dining room and storage space.

With the move into adequate quarters, new programs will be developed to meet community needs and demands, according to Harold C. Hill, chapter director.

Phoenix Minister Blasts 'Red'
National Council Of Churches

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — The minister of one of Phoenix' oldest and largest Protestant churches Sunday denounced the National Council of Churches from the pulpit.

After his sermon the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Poling, interim pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, read a prepared statement in which he charged the council with allying itself with Communist fronts.

A member of a distinguished Presbyterian family, the Rev. Dr. Poling's nephew, the Rev. Clark Poling, was one of the 4 clergymen who drowned in World War II after giving their lifejackets to sailors when the cruiser USS Dorchester was sunk.

To a hushed congregation, the Rev. Dr. Poling said, "the National Council of Churches has presumed to be the voice of 50 million Protestants, which is a false claim. She (the council) has allied herself with Communist fronts and advocated ideologies and sponsored movements directly opposed to our free way of life and republican form of government."

"All too frequently," he said, "she has been seen marching with the forces of Communism."

Citing reasons for his attack, the minister denounced the council for advocating admission of Red China to the United Nations; opposing the Bricker Amendment and right-to-work laws; urging repeal of the Connally reservation and suggesting that riots at San Francisco city hall were not Communist-inspired during the House Un-American Activities Committee hearing.

Attacking any move to unify Protestants, the Rev. Dr. Poling criticized the World Council of Churches and the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, a member of the council.

"Just as there is a move toward world government and the destruction of all America stands for and holds dear . . .," said the Rev. Dr. Poling, "so through these bodies is there a movement to bring into being an organically united protestantism . . ."

"I am unalterably opposed to the proposal," he said.

In New York, a spokesman for the National Council of Churches described Dr. Poling's remarks as "utterly ridiculous."

"These charges have been bandied around by a small band of dissidents who attempt to destroy the organized church people," the spokesman said.

"None of the charges can be proven or demonstrated as being anywhere near the truth."

The spokesman added: "as for alliances with Communist fronts, this is utterly ridiculous. The council is not allied with any organization other than its 34 church groups."

"It has never pretended to speak for 50 million protestants," he said.

EUB Bishop Emphasizes Evangelism

Dr. Paul W. Milhouse, newly-elected bishop, southwestern area, of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, spoke in Lincoln Sunday on the individual's responsibility in evangelism.

Speaking from the pulpit at First EUB Church, 33rd and Starr, Bishop Milhouse chose the first chapter of the Gospel of St. John as his text.

His message was that unless church members witness their faith in God, many people will miss Him. The task, he said, is sharing our faith with others. The congregation, numbering about 400, formed in small groups for workshop sessions on aspects of evangelism.

The bishop's appearance in Lincoln marks the beginning of a week-long series of 12 workshops in Nebraska.

A reception for Bishop and Mrs. Milhouse followed the service.

Panel members each spoke briefly on the topic "Revolution Without," centered around the general theme of Religion in Life Week, "Relevant Faith." The discussion was followed by a question-answer session.

Two succeeding mass meetings will be held Monday and Tuesday on the respective topics "Revolution Within" and "Revolution—Right or Wrong."

WANT ADS are for EVERYBODY

You might call me a pretty demanding member of the family. You might say that my needs and wants can put quite a strain on the family budget. But the fact is that my mother knows a way to keep costs down and still give me everything I need to be healthy, comfortable and happy.

Mom reads the Journal and Star Want Ads. She get me things I need by answering the ads. So far she has bought me a bed and a play pen, both like new, through the Want Ads. In years to come I may find my first bike, ice skates, more furniture and even my first car because Mom knows that it pays to shop the Journal and Star Want Ads.

To place your Journal and Star Want Ads, Dial GR 7-8902 and ask for Want Ads.

Science Shrinks Piles
New Way Without Surgery
Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

MILITARY RETIREMENT COSTS SPIRALLING

Washington (AP)—Nearly 275,000 persons will be receiving military retirement pay by mid-1961.

The Pentagon estimates that by 1965, 20 years after the end of World War II, the total will be up to about 444,000.

And by 1983, a Defense Department analysis predicts something like 1,163,000.

Retirement pay represents a substantial — and swiftly mounting — part of the annual military budget.

$835 Million

The estimate is that during the fiscal year ending next July the payments will total $835 million. By 1965 they may be up to $1,111,000,000. And by 1983, the bill could be more than $3 billion.

Studies are being made both within and outside the Pentagon to see if something can be done to ease the effect on the federal budget.

One possibility being explored is a contributory system under which a man would pay part of the cost while still on active or reserve status.

Assumption

The latest Pentagon analysis says its predictions are on the assumption that present rates of payment will be continued. The future might bring increased payments to individuals or, less likely, decreased payments.

The study also assumes two other factors: that the rate of persons staying on active duty will remain at about current levels and that the size of the regular armed forces will be about the same. These also are factors which the analysis notes can change.

As an example, the report recalls that in 1953 it was estimated that 2% of the persons then entering military service would continue in service until retirement age. But the latest estimate is 10%.

Increases

Each reduction in overall manpower of the regular and reserve services increases the retirement list. The effect on retirement pay doesn't show for a long time.

In an emergency, some men may be called back to active duty and the retirement expenditures thus reduced. But many others, perhaps a majority, would be too old for recall to active duty.

On another facet of the retirement question the study comments:

"For many years in the future, even under a variety of circumstances, it can be anticipated that the number of new retirements in any year will exceed the number removed from the retired list by death, recovery from disability or otherwise, and consequently that the number on the retired list will increase steadily.

Not Peculiar

"This steady increase is not peculiar to the military retirement system, but is common to all systems, except in very unusual circumstances."

As of next July 1, the Defense Department estimates that retirement pay will be going to about 149,000 enlisted men and 124,000 officers.

Of the total receiving military retirement pay, about 107,000 will be Army, 110,000 Navy, 14,000 Marines and 41,000 Air Force.

By 1983, the estimates indicate that about 414,000 Air Force Personnel will be receiving retirement pay, while the total for the Army will be 343,000, for the Navy 329,000 and the Marine Corps 75,000.

4 Persons Found Stabbed To Death

St. Jerome, Que., (AP)—Four persons were found stabbed to death Sunday in St. Jerome, 30 miles north of Montreal.

Police said they believed it to be a case of triple-murder and suicide.

Dead were Giovanni Altieri, his wife, his daughter, and his daughter's fiancé.

All the bodies were found in the Altieri home.

They had been stabbed with a kitchen knife.

Accident Report

Mexico City (AP)—Thirty-seven persons died in 565 traffic accidents in this Mexican capital last December.

'Dr. MacGregor And His Wee Black Bag' Is So Popular Family Could Hardly Find It

Glasgow, Scotland (AP)—People all over Scotland rallied round to answer a desperate plea from Brazil:

"How does the song 'Dr. MacGregor and His Wee Black Bag' go?"

The plea came from Toby Dod of Sao Paulo, who is putting on a play and wanted a copy of the song made famous by the late Scottish entertainer Will Fyffe.

Dod couldn't find the words or music of the song in Brazil so he wrote to friends, the MacIntyre family, in Glasgow. They thought it would be easy.

But by the time the MacIntyres had been to every music shop in Glasgow without success they began to have doubts. They widened their search and wrote or telephoned every music dealer in Scotland. Not one had a copy of the song.

It seems the song is so famous that almost every Scot knows it already—so there is a microscopic market for song sheets of "Dr. MacGregor and His Wee Black Bag."

Scotland's biggest music collection, in Glasgow's Mitchell Library, failed to turn up a copy.

The British Broadcasting Corp. was unable to help. Phonograph record dealer did not have anything to help so the MacIntyres wrote to a Scottish newspaper.

The response was fantastic. Hundreds of letters poured in, giving the chorus and verses of "Dr. MacGregor and His Wee Black Bag." Many offered the loan of tape recordings and phonograph records.

Grandmothers, teen-agers and maiden aunts from Skye to Auchtermuchty wrote, offering advice and assistance. Phonograph records arrived by the dozen—many of them in broken pieces by the time they reached the MacIntyre family.

Finally they made a tape recording of one of the records and mailed it Sunday to Toby Dod in Sao Paulo. Pretty soon he'll know just how "Dr. MacGregor and His Wee Black Bag" goes.
